The Emergency Coinage of the German Provinces of East and West Prussia 1916 - 1921

by Gunter W. Kienast, ANA 58125

The subject as quoted in the title has been treated skillfully and learnedly by many distinguished numismatists, in America, notably by the late O. P. Eklund and by Robert A. Lamb. The former listed in The Numismatist, "German War Tokens" (Notgeld) during the years 1948 to 1955. After his untimely death the list was completed and brought up-to-date in 1960 by Mrs. Helen Woodburn. Lamb first published a catalog of German War Tokens in installments in The Numismatic Scrapbook Magazine, which later were combined in a book.

This article will have nothing new to add to the research work of Eklund and Lamb; it will, however, try to shed some background on the issues of East and West Prussia, give stories connected with some of the coinage and furnish mintage figures for the issues made during the years from 1916 to 1921.

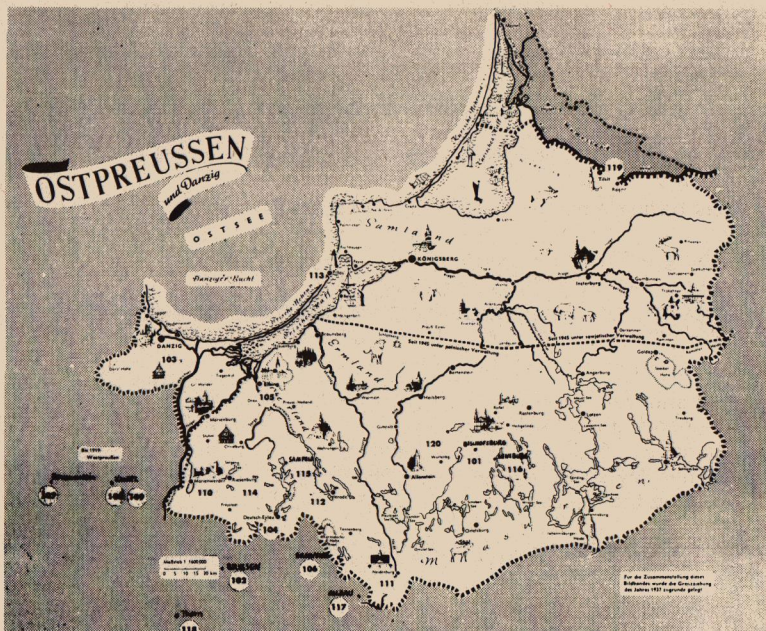

Why particularly the provinces of East and West Prussia? It all began with an auction catalog from a German coin dealer who advertised in his numismatic literature sale a catalog dealing with the notgeld of East and West Prussia written by Professor M. v. Bahrfeldt in Halle (Saale) in 1929. While I was unsuccessful in bidding for this desirable work, I was able to obtain a complete set of photocopies of articles which had been published in the "Blätter für Münzfreunde" by the same author on the same subject through the coin dealers from their own library.

These articles are so lively and interesting that they should not be withheld from the English speaking collector. Also since the coinage of these provinces comprises only 20 communities, and since I was able to obtain most of these for my collection, I shall be able to present a group of coins which can be considered complete. Last, but in no way least, I was born in East Prussia and raised in West Prussia, so this little treatise in emergency coinage becomes an excursion into nostalgia. Most of the communities covered here I have visited at some time or other and I might be able to give the American reader something more than merely a dry treatment of the subject. If I should succeed to interest anyone in the now forgotten Eastern territories of Germany, then the rewards have been great.

I shall approach my subject alphabetically by communities issuing emergency coins. I will describe the history of each community first generally and then the specifics which led to the striking of the emergency coins. I am able to show pictures of at least one denomination of coins for each community.

My deepest thanks goes to Richard Gaettens, the owner of the coin firms A. Riechmann & Co. in Lübeck with whom rests the copyright of Professor Bahrfeldt's articles in the "Blätter fuer Muenzfreunde" and who so kindly gave permission to translate and use Professor Bahrfeldt's material.

Prussia was not divided until 1878. As a result of the Versailles Treaty a further division of West Prussia took place in 1920. Five counties were given to East Prussia, the remainder of those that were taken became part of Poland forming the famous "Corridor" which gave Poland access to the Baltic Sea.

The provinces of East and West Prussia are beautiful country. All the surface formations except for mountains can be seen in Prussia. Colonization first came to these provinces in 1231 when the Order of the Teutonic Knights crossed the Vistula river, brought Christianity to this area, built the first solid houses and improved the land. Monuments of their activity still stand today. Many fortresses were erected to pacify the land. That is why so many cities' names have the ending . . . burg, "Burg" meaning fortress in German. Out of the 20 cities issuing notgeld coinage between 1916 and 1921 six have the ending . . . burg in their name.

The soil of East and West Prussia is fertile. The major crops are sugar beets and the golden wheat. This region is the home of the Hanseatic seaport, Danzig, with its old and elegant patrician homes, the city of Elbing, somewhat south of Danzig, with its ship building yards, the little quaint town of Frauenburg from which Copernicus declared to the world his new theory of the earth rotating around the sun. Further east lies Königsberg, the city of Immanuel Kant. It is said that if philosophy had to be brought to one name only, it would be Kant. In the Samland area northeast of Königsberg the beautiful amber was found. It is famous for its two bays, the "Frisches Haff" and the "Kurisches Haff," preferred vacation spots for sun and sand lovers. The wandering dunes of Nidden have no equal in this world. It is country also for the hunter of moose and elk and the fisherman to whom the crystal clear lakes are an eldorado.

The population of the two Prussias is as varied as the landscape. People originated from Lower Saxony, Salzburg and include Dutch Mennonites brought in to build dykes to check the flooding of the Vistula river. The Prussian stock is of a quiet nature. Not many words are minted, but a word once given was not retracted. The East Prussians were known as hardheaded, determined people, but an occasional laugh was part of their character also. All in all they were a people which worked hard, both reliable and conscientious. They built the province as the showcase of Germany. Today not much of the German population is left in these provinces. They had to leave their homes in 1945 and today are living in West and East Germany, their children already beginning the process of assimilation. Most of the beautiful cities were destroyed during the last war year 1945. The land suffered tremendously. Its scars are still visible to the visitor of today and the land has no resemblance to its earlier importance.

Twenty communities in East and West Prussia issued official emergency coinage during the years 1916-1921. The map shows East and West Prussia of the borders of 1937. I have marked in by hand the communities which belonged to West Prussia up to 1920, when 5 counties were taken away and given to Poland, and the remaining 5 counties of the original West Prussia were attached to the Province of East Prussia.

The numbers listed against the location of cities are not intended as a new number system for these particular coins, they are merely a guide for the reader illustrating where the cities in question are situated.

The cities having emergency coinage in East and West Prussia are listed here alphabetically:

Bischofsburg — Briesen — Danzig — Dt. Eylau — Elbing
Gilgenburg — Hammerstein — Kreis Konitz — Stadt Konitz —
Marienwerder — Neidenburg — Osterode — Pillau — Riesenburg — Saalfeld — Sensburg — Soldau — Thorn — Tilsit — Wartenburg.

Of these 20 communities 20 are in East Prussia and 10 are in West Prussia.

I shall list and treat each community as an entity of its own. I am not concentrating on listing the denominations, sizes and weights of the individual coins alone. The catalogues of Eklund, Funck, Dr. Keller, and Lamb have done this in a most convenient and complete manner. My stress will be on the backgrounds leading to the issues and little tid-bits concerning the issues and other interesting stories.

What events led to the issuance of emergency coinage in general?

The beginning of World War I almost immediately caused a scarcity of small change coins. To overcome this shortage many communities issued emergency paper money in small denominations. At the beginning of the year 1915, however, most of these bills were withdrawn again. The hoarding of small change nickel and copper coins forced the communities again to issue small denomination bills ranging from one to fifty pfennigs. These began in 1916 and continued to 1921. Official decrees, but also the progressive devaluation of the currency, then set an end to these issues. In addition to these bills, which had many shortcomings, many communities also issued emergency money in coins. These coins were first made of zinc, later of iron, sometimes aluminum or white metal, when zinc was no longer available due to the requirements of the war industry. The issuance of these coins reached its height in 1918, diminished from then and was stopped completely in 1921. Isolated higher values of currency issued during the inflationary period of 1923 are the exception and cannot truly be considered emergency coinage.

The German government and the Reichsbank found themselves in a very peculiar position as far as these emergency money issues were concerned. Hardly any community obtained an official approval from the financial authorities of the government to issue such coinage. The communities were careful, however, not to give the coins the appearance of official money struck by the government. They were not allowed by law to show the official government emblems, such as the Reichs eagle; while the word "pfennig" appears on most of these coins, there also appears the monstrous term "Kleingeldersatzmarke" which stands for "Small change substitute token." The German government went so far as to advise its member banks to stress the speed-up of circulation of small change. They also suggested the more frequent emptying of the gas coin automats in order to increase coin circulation. Nothing helped, however, the hoarding continued and the emergency coinage continued to fill the void.

The government was not able to supply enough coins despite repeated promises, (even the manufacture of iron coins did not relieve the shortage.) It had no other choice but to look on, doing nothing, not exercising its right to stop such issues, but also not supplying the market with more change. The only stipulation on the publication of this emergency was that it adhere to mint policy directives and time limitations. So, for instance, it was recommended that emergency money issues be called in not later than 3 months after issue. Soon the impracticability of such restriction became apparent and the government tolerated the issuance without a specific call limit. It is still not understood why the German government did not take a determined stand on these wildcat issues. If the facilities of the mints did not allow the production of enough coinage for small change they could have recruited the many firms capable of making these coins. As the case of the communities and private individuals and firms illustrates, private enterprise for the making of emergency coins prevailed. One point not to be overlooked is that not all issues were true emergency issues and necessary to fill the gap left by the hoarding of small change or the lack of supply of the Reichsbank. Many small communities soon realized the profit feature involved in striking their own coinage. Many collectors manned the bandwagon and acquired whole groups of money in order to trade them later at a profit. As will be mentioned against the issues of the individual 20 cities for East and West Prussia, many communities came out of these ventures with spare money for their treasuries. Trading with these coins, other than as official tender in the cities, was very vivid and profitable to many.

The law dealing with the "Issuance and redemption of emergency money" as proclaimed on July 17, 1922 ended the reign of emergency money in Germany. The study of the years 1916 to 1921 with view to the "Notgeld" issues slowly seems to gain more and more in status. It must be considered a legitimate branch of numismatics, since the majority of these coins were made for circulation and fully accepted as money. The reprinting of some of the older works on "Notgeld," notably by Dr. Keller of Berlin, proves that the interest in this series is growing. In English, however, there seems to be a serious lack of information about the line of paper emergency money during the years following World War I in Germany. Quite rightly does the editor of the Numismatic Literary Guild newsletter complain in its issue No. 2 that "Notgeld coins have been written about in depth but there seems to be very little about the paper money of 1921-1926 (sic). All the literature we have seen is written in German."

City of Bischofsburg, East Prussia

Number 101 on map

101 Bischofsburg

A small town of 8,300 inhabitants and seat of the county administration. Founded in the year 1395 by Bishop Heinrich III Sorbom. A fortress is first mentioned in 1389, but was completely destroyed in the Cities' War (1454-66). The fortress was not rebuilt. Only in the name of the city and coat-of-arms of the city did the fortress continue to live. In the plebiscite of 1920 the population voted completely for Germany. It received a railroad in 1898, while the following year it became a garrison for a battalion of infantry. The surroundings of Bischofsburg are made of sandy, arid soil. Due to its location, however, it was an important and prospering town.

The only denomination of emergency money commissioned was a 50 pfennig piece, made of iron, 25½ mm diameter, 3.7 grams in weight. The strike was extremely shallow, which accounts for the wear of the coin in my collection. The city council on August 26, 1918, decided to replace the by now unattractive paper bills of the fifty pfennig denomination with metal coins. The order was placed with the private mint of L. Chr. Lauer in Nuremberg and the delivery took place on October 12, 1918. The first order was for 4,200 pieces. In December of the same year it became necessary to order another shipment of the coins. In April 1919, the Lauer company delivered 4,090 pieces, struck from the same dies, but showing on the reverse very insignificant changes. The total of mintage for this coin therefore was 8,290 pieces.

A peculiar aspect worth mentioning is the fact that the administration tried to charge a 5% surcharge on any amount of emergency money of 5 marks or more, when sold in one transaction to private persons. The resistance against this surcharge was so great, that the city fathers had to abandon the extra 5%.

At the time of redemption of emergency paper money, the city realized a profit of 1,905 marks, which was partly used to pay for the minting of the coins. The coinage bearing the year 1918 was redeemed on June 1, 1922. There is no exact proof of how many of the fifty pfennig pieces were returned in exchange for official money. It is assumed that most of it stayed with the public or was lost. The net profit for the city through non-redemption and lost coins came to 6,011 marks.

5 - 10 - 50 pfennig

Around 1200 on the isthmus between Friedeck and Schloss lakes an old Prussian fort, which later became a German settlement, was located. The village is first mentioned in 1246 under the name Wambresin and received a church in 1251. This church marked the founding of the city at the high shores of the Friedeck lake. In the middle of the 18th century the ruins of the Bishop's castle were used to rebuild the forlorn town. In 1772 Briesen only had a population of 502, in 1943 it had grown to 10,000. The necessary upswing came with the completion of a road network and the connection to the railway. It became home to cement factories, machine manufacturing plants, breweries, dairies and brick plants.

For the striking of 3 denominations of "Notgeld" coins, the little town of Briesen commissioned the firm of Bros. Kugel & Fink in Luedenscheid, Ruhr-area. These are the 5, 10 and 50 pfennig pieces. In total, there were delivered to the city 14,006 pieces of five pfennig, 40,284 of ten pfennig and 20,279 pieces of fifty pfennig coins. These were the only coins of East and West Prussian emergency coins which had an identical obverse and reverse. (This was made after the sample of the coins of the city of Dueren, Rhineland.) The metal was iron, smooth and zinc coated. The sizes were 18.5 mm for the 5,—21.7 mm for the 10, and 23.7 mm for the 50 pfennig pieces. The first order was placed with Kugel & Fink in April 1918, a second order was soon necessary in August 1918. The coins of the first shipment were coated with a rust preventive lacquer. The city council complained, however, about the slight rusting and for the second shipment the coins were zinc coated before striking. Further news about the redemption of the pieces and their disposal is not available.

103 Danzig*10 pfennig

At the mouth of the river Mottlau a fortress settlement dating back to the 10th and 11th century was located. At the close of the 12th century a church was built there and at the same time the first arrival of Germans took place. When the Teutonic Knights built fortresses, towns and villages on the right shores of the Vistula river, an independent German city was formed on the site of the "Long Market." She received in 1240 the rights of a city. It became a major center of trade and commerce and was one of the cities of the Hanse. It was always able to maintain its political independence. Through its great volume of trading Danzig became a very wealthy city. Her buildings and other city arrangements are witnesses to this wealth. Danzig had her own stock exchange at the Artushof, a magnificent building of patrician foresight and taste. Danzig passed to Prussia in 1793, became a free city from 1807 to 1814 and was restored to Prussia in 1814. It was the capital of the province of West Prussia until 1919. Then the treaty of Versailles again made it a free city. Hitler's demand for Danzig's reunion with Germany was the chief direct cause of World War II, I believe. Today Danzig is under Polish administration. It was virtually destroyed during the war actions and street fighting in 1945 and lost most of her beautiful buildings and cultural monuments. The Polish government has made many attempts to restore the city to its old splendor. The German population of 1945 is no longer living there, it was expelled and replaced by Poles.

Although only one denomination — the 10 pfennig piece — was struck for the city of Danzig, it is one of the most interesting of the series of twenty in East and West Prussia. Funck in his book "Die Notmuenzen" lists 47 varieties of this coin alone. The prices, again per his book, range from $7.50 to $25.00, which is one of the highest ranges for the whole series of German notgeld coinage.

The total amount minted was 1 million pieces, of which 124,000 were made with the large figure 10. This is the coin which demands up to $25.00 a piece. The second group was made with a smaller figure 10 (as shown here in the picture) and a total of 876,000 pieces were minted. Both coins were 22mm in diameter, the weight was 2.23 grams for the type with the large figure 10, and 1.94 grams for the second type with the smaller figure 10. The metal was zinc in both instances.

Variety in the coins is expressed through the various forms of the letters, various arrangements of the flowers and leaves, points etc. Two different types of dies were used to strike these coins. One made by Anders shows the little angel head very clearly with its parted and wavy falling hair. On the other die, as made by the Rifle Manufacturing Plant in Danzig, this same lovely head had become a grimace and the hair had changed to resemble a soldier's helmet. Of the type with the smaller figure 10, twenty-seven silver strikes were made to be given as mementos to the ones who took part in the minting.

On April 13, 1920, the city council of Danzig decided to have 10 pfennig coins made for the city, in preference to emergency paper money of the 10 and 50 pfennig values. Professor Petersen of the Technical College of Danzig and also the artistic advisor of the city council asked to arrange for the presentation of designs for such coinage. The sculptor Georg Bocker delivered several designs in the form of wax models. The very well known and very reputable jewellers Moritz Stumpf and Son in Danzig received the order to manufacture the dies after one of these models. Engraver Anders carried out this work. The striking and minting was put into the hands of the Rifle Manufacturing Plant in Danzig. First the number was authorized to be 500,000 but was later changed to the final 1 million.

There were a number of unhappy incidents and frictions involved in this undertaking. The Rifle Manufacturing Plant was not experienced in this kind of project, so work progressed very slowly. The striking was carried out by 3 presses in two shifts per day of 8 hours each. The manufacture of the million coins was completed in October 1920. The remaining zinc planchets were all destroyed so that the number minted came to an exact 1 million pieces.

The bill for this striking was very high. The Rifle Plant charged 8 pfennigs for each 10 pfennig piece made. The number of dies made for this striking was 101 pair by the firm of M. Stumpf and Son and 71 pair by the Rifle Manufacturing Plant in Danzig.

The press and the public criticized these pieces severely, mostly due to the very inferior and ugly finished product after the good dies were rendered unserviceable by the Rifle Manufacturing Plant personnel.

The firm of Stumpf & Son was very busy during the season and could not render the dies, as they were required, to replace the first shipment they had made. These were destroyed very early and made useless by the press teams due to their inexperience and incompetent handling of such valuable tools. The Rifle Mfg. Plant then by its own request asked to be allowed to cut their own dies. Professor Petersen, the artistic adviser to the city council protested, but to no avail. The city pressed the Rifle Manufacturing people to complete the job, and dies had to be made available. These dies could not compare to the professional job of Stumpf & Son. One could see the difference mainly in the angel's head as explained before.

The public also became alarmed, pointing out how much this layman-die-making and the subsequent end product could open the door to widespread fakery and copying of the official coinage. Craftsmanship surely did not distinguish a fake from the official issue. The official issue was plainly ugly. The newspaper Die Danziger Zeitung in its issue of March 13, 1920 wrote: "... With close inspection the whole coin makes not only an unsightly but also a very unstable impression. It is by no means geared to vouch for the efficiency and precision of our factories."

In January 1922 the city council by public notice ordered the redemption of all emergency money. But until March 1923 not one piece of the 10 pfennig issue had been handed back to the city. Due to the high manufacturing cost there was no profit to the city. Of the used dies, 78 unserviceable ones were handed back and ground down, 4 serviceable dies were deposited.

City of Deutsch Eylau, West Prussia

104 Deutsch Eylau

10 - 50 pfennig

The small city of Deutsch Eylau is located on a peninsula in Lake Geserich. Founded in 1305 as a trade center for the surrounding villages, records show caretakers of the Teutonic Knights as early as 1320. The church, planned and built in the 14th century (Protestant since the Reformation) is one of the prettiest sights in the area. Since 1522 several masters determined the fate of the city of Deutsch Eylau. From 1758 to 1762 it was occupied by the Russians. The extension of the traffic routes increased the city's importance. In 1860 a connection by waterway through the Oberlaendische Channel to Elbing to the north was created. Since 1872 the city had a railroad connection. In 1943 the population of Deutsch Eylau was 13,691. Its true German character became apparent in the plebiscite of 1920 when out of 4,991 votes cast, only 235 voted for Poland. At the end of World War II, Deutsch Eylau was the scene of hard fighting due to its importance as a center of traffic. Destruction was great.

Deutsch Eylau had a multitude of different Notgeld varieties minted. All were done by the firm L. Chr. Lauer in Nuremberg. The emergency coins for this city bear 4 different inscriptions: 1916/17, 1917, 1918 and 1920. The first 8,205 fifty pfennig pieces were made in an octagonal shape in zinc. Later in 1917 the shape was changed to round, but was still minted in zinc. After the city fathers, in February 1917, received a letter from the governor of the province of West Prussia, stating that the use of zinc could no longer be allowed because it was a strategic war material, the city used iron for the remainder of the striking of coins.

The city of Deutsch Eylau had already resorted to the issue of "Notgeld" in a very primitive manner in 1914 by having hand written certificates issued. In 1917, however, the consensus was that more sophisticated ways of alleviating the coin shortage should be found. The coins of 50 and 10 pfennig denominations were ordered in intervals during the years because the city, as many others at that time, fell victim to repeated promises by the Reichsbank that enough small change to help overcome the shortage would be supplied. Since this promise was never realized the city had to place new orders. The businessmen of the city complained that they were handicapped by the coin shortage. All in all, two zinc issues were commissioned: 50 pfennig in 1916/17 and 10 pfennig with the year 1917 only.

An item worth mentioning in connection with this city's issues is the complaint filed with the public prosecutor in Nuremberg against the firm of L. Chr. Lauer. The city council accused this firm of usury because each coin in 1920 did cost 9.58 pfennig to manufacture. The prosecutor, however, dismissed the complaint as having no foundation after investigating the price rises of raw material with another firm in Nuremberg, the private mint C. Balmberger. The inquiry brought to light that by 1920 the prices for raw materials of zinc and iron had risen by 510% as compared to 1918 and that the wages had gone up by 190%. The demands of the minting firm of Lauer against the city of Deutsch Eylau were found to be in line with 1920 price structures.

The city council therefore dropped any further action in 1921 to mint more emergency money since the cost would nearly have reached the denomination of the coins.

On May 22, 1922, the redemption of all outstanding emergency coinage was ordered; the action closed on July 1, 1922. The total amount redeemed was 681.30 marks. Which types and denominations were handed in and how they were disposed of is not known.

City of Elbing, West Prussia

number 105 on the map

105 Elbing

1 - 2 pfennig

In 1237 the Order of the Teutonic Knights founded a fortress on the river Elbing with the same name. Immediately following, with the permission of the city of Luebeck, the metropolis of the Hanse League, a city was planned. The order and the Hanse demonstrated here a common going-together not shown elsewhere. Elbing not only was the main seat of the order from 1251 to 1309, it also was at the same time the leading under the cities in the new land. Only at the end of the 14th century was Danzig able to overtake its rival. At this time the high master of the order moved away taking the city's importance with him. The city was founded as a trading place, it remained a trading place. The warehouses along the river, the old patrician houses and the Nicolai church with its fine starlike ceilings of the 16th century, are examples of Elbing's dedication and wealth. Many workmen were employed and owned homes in the west of the city, working for the Schichau shipbuilders.

What happened to the glory of Elbing? Most of it is gone, destroyed during the last hectic weeks of the war in 1945, never to be replaced. The valuable and precious altars and sculptures, the Triumph Cross of the burnt-out Nicolai Church, were never traced. Only the Statue of Georg, a possession of the Georgen Order appeared again in New York.

With a population of 86,000 Elbing was the second largest city in the proper of West Prussia province, and it was of utmost importance for commerce and navigation. The Elbing of today has nothing in common with the beautiful city of 1945 before its destruction.

The emergency coinage of 1918 comprises the 2 pfennig and the 1 pfennig piece. The Chamber of Commerce of Elbing suggested to the council in December 1916 that it issue emergency coinage to overcome the shortage of small change. Voices of complaint were also heard from the shipbuilding firm, Schichau, which paid wages in even mark amounts since October 1915 due to small change shortages. When the food ration office of the city presented the claim that the food merchants suffered tremendously from the shortage of coins because many food article prices were not divisible into 5 or 10 pfennig, the city took action on September 6, 1918, and ordered amounts of 1 and 2 pfennig pieces for 5,000 marks each. In this case the governor's office in Danzig approved of the order.

There are no records dealing with the redemption and disposal of the coins after 1920. The only entry in the budget is against the title: Emergency coinage of the city of Elbing 1914-1923, against the 1 and 2 pfennig values, "Not redeemed, since valueless."

It appears therefore that the whole issue remained in the hands of the public.

Considering the always emphasized scarcity of small coinage, it seems odd to read a letter written by the city on May 5, 1919, to the city of Marienburg, about 45 miles away to the south, that Elbing offers Marienburg its own 1 and 2 pfennig emergency coins. Elbing sent samples with the letter. The city of Marienburg declined the offer and returned the sample coins.

City of Gilgenburg, East Prussia

106 Gilgenburg

5 - 10 - 50 pfennig

The city is located in the county of Osterode. It was founded in the 14th century, the exact year is not known. In 1326 the Duke Luther v. Braunschweig (1316-31) gave the settlement city rights. The location of the city was one of the issues during the wars between the Order of the Teutonic Knights and Poland. In the Seven Years War the city had to furnish much of the cereal, flour, hay and cattle for the Russian army. In January 1807, six thousand men under the command of Marshal Ney were camped in and around the city. They looted the city unmercifully. Only in 1832 was Gilgenburg able to pay its war debt. In the 20th century the city led an important existence due to its hook-up to the railroad lines in 1910. Of very grave consequence for the city was the removal of the Soldau area from the German Reich without a plebiscite as decreed by the Versailles Treaty, depriving Gilgenburg of its "Hinterland." The city gave the impression of being a dying city, and yet during the plebiscite, of 1,243 votes cast 1,203 were for Germany and only 40 for Poland. The population of Gilgenburg in 1925 was 1,514.

The minutes of the council session of the city of Gilgenburg on August 26, 1918, document that the shortage of small change coins in Gilgenburg became quite noticeable and damaging to trade and commerce. The council therefore agreed to strike its own emergency coinage for fifty, ten and five pfennig pieces in the total amount of 5,000 marks. A notice to this effect was also sent to the governor in Allenstein and an equal amount of cash was deposited with the Reichsbank branch in Osterode in a frozen account. The government in Allenstein replied, that the city of Wartenburg, which also contemplated an issue of Notgeld, received the assurance from the Reichsbank that enough regular coins would be provided. A similar arrangement could no doubt be made for Gilgenburg. Replying to Gilgenburg's letter to this effect, the Reichsbank branch in Osterode says "to our great regret must we advise that we cannot comply, since we have not received any 50 pfennig pieces from Berlin for months, and 10 and 5 pfennig pieces only in single bags of 100 marks each, irregularly."

Based on this information, the government in Allenstein withdrew its objection and the council ordered the coinage from the firm Brothers Kugel & Fink in Luedenscheid. The coins were to be executed as per the sample of the city of Briesen (also treated in this article at an earlier point.) The city refrained from the use of its coat-of-arms (a lily) due to the higher cost. Soon the first issue of coins was used up and a new group had to be made. With this second group the fifty pfennig pieces received a reeded edge, while the first batch of the 50 pfennig and the 5 and 10 pfennig pieces had a smooth edge.

On January 30, 1922, the announcement appeared that the emergency coinage had to be redeemed by May 1, 1922. There is no proof in the files and records of how many pieces were presented for redemption and what happened to these redeemed coins. Probably no presentation by the public took place since a file note of January 5, 1921 says "The earlier issued iron emergency coins were all stashed away by collectors."

City of Hammerstein, West Prussia

107 Hammerstein

The city is located in a sandy, forest rich area near the small river Zahne. In 1388 and 1389 the city served as the meeting place for negotiations between the Teutonic Order and the Dukes of Pomerania. The old fortress of the Order near the city was still standing in 1664. Today only some ruins are left. In its place the castle of the Hammersteins, ending the possession by the family of von Livonius, was built. In 1754, Hammerstein contained 54 cloth makers; in 1850 about 200 shoemakers. The cloth making and shoemaking trade therefore had become the most important industries of Hammerstein. In the industrial 20th century however, there was no longer a need for these trades. Hammerstein was connected to the railroad in 1878. A further improvement in the affairs of the city resulted when the army training area was transferred to the city, changing its character. 4,363 people lived in Hammerstein in 1939.

Altogether 3 shipments of emergency coins were made by the firm of Chr. L. Lauer in Nuremberg. The denominations were 10 and 50 pfennig pieces. All were made of zinc. The field of the 50 pfennig piece was copper plated while the rim was not. The amounts minted in 1917 and 1919 for the city were in no way sufficient; the city therefore, asked for permission from the government in Schneidemuehl on March 10, 1920, to strike further amounts. In the request Hammerstein's council mentions the fact that many merchants were using postage stamps in change, a medium that became easily lost and torn. The citizens of Hammerstein due to the coin shortages had to buy articles they did not need or want merely to bring purchases to round marks. After the government in Schneidemuehl asked for a security deposit of 8,000 marks before an approval could be given, the city dropped its plans of a further issue.

The redemption and withdrawal of the emergency coinage was set for July 1921. Redeemed were 1,209 pieces of the fifty pfennig denomination and 757 pieces of the ten pfennig. Of the disposal it is known only that Dr. E. Scharf of Mundenheim in Western Germany purchased 100 pieces each and that a Dr. Neubruck in Mannheim purchased 30 pieces each. Further specimens were sold singly. The remainder in the amount of 279.20 marks was destroyed on July 17, 1922.

Konitz, "the always loyal city," of the Teutonic Order was founded next to an old settlement. The development of the city reached a certain finality by 1323. The church of St. Johann originated in the middle of the 14th century. Already during this century the clothmaking trade was in full bloom. In 1555 the first Protestant pastor arrived in Konitz, where the Reformation had found a foothold by then. During the second Swedish-Polish war, the city suffered extreme hardships due to occupation, looting and fire, especially in 1657. New fires were set in 1733 and 1740 but the city was always able to recuperate from the losses. At the end of the 18th century the city was one of the wealthiest of West Prussia. The connection to the railroad network in 1868 improved the industrial situation even more. In 1943 Konitz had 18,881 inhabitants.

As the heading of this paragraph shows, there are two different types of emergency coinage connected with the name Konitz: — 1) The coins of the city; and, 2) the coins of the county.

The coinage of the city is made from iron in an octagonal shape, while the coins of the county were in a square shape. This square money was originally used as a sugar token. No denominations were shown on either the city or the county coinage. For this reason these two emergency monies are not accepted by many as "Notgeld." It is a matter of record however, that both types have circulated as emergency coins. The square shape coins of the county of Konitz were exchanged in the value of 2 pfennige. There is further proof that these metal tokens were meant to be emergency coinage in the wording of the order placed with the firm of Chr. L. Lauer in Nuremberg. "The council of Konitz, West Prussia, intends to have manufactured square or multi-pointed pieces from iron or aluminum in order to alleviate the small change shortage."

The orders were placed with the firm of Wilhelm Heckert in Halle and der Saale, who acted as middleman. The actual minting was carried out by Lauer in Nuremberg. The first order was for 60,100 pieces for the county on May 18, 1916, and 12,200 pieces for the city on the same date.

Another order was placed in August of the same year for the county and in December 1916 for the city. Delivery was made with 30,575 pieces for the county and 1,000 pieces for the city.

Of the 1,000 pieces for the city as ordered in December 1916, W. Funck in his book Die Notmuenzen, states that the size of the 1,000 piece group was somewhat larger, namely 30.4mm as opposed to 21mm for the earlier delivery. He claims the city expressly requested this increase in size.

City of Marienwerder, West Prussia

3 - 10 - 50 pfennig

Rev. for all 3 values

When Emperor Frederick II in the famous Golden Bull of Rimini promised the "Brothers of the German House" the possession of the Pruzzen land between the rivers Vistula and Niemen, and when the armies of the order now advanced from the land of the middle Vistula, they did not always come as warriors. They brought a culture to the land not found until then. It was the culture of the Mediterranean city. Their fortresses always consisted of 12 brothers of the order and some clerics under the leadership of a comtur. The fortresses possessed everything necessary to conduct normal life and prosperity. Oil presses, sawmills, corn silos and utility buildings. By necessity the fortresses therefore soon were surrounded by settlements which also served as defense installations. The idea of location and defense strategy was seldom accomplished as in the city of Marienwerder. The fortress dominated the Vistula valley above the Nogat and Liebe Rivers. After the founding of the Bishopry Pomesanian, a cathedral chapter was established there in 1285. An interesting curiosity of the fortress of Marienwerder is the huge extended tower which served as toilet installation and was connected to the main buildings by a covered walk supported by 5 massive pillars.

Marienwerder never reached the importance of its two neighbors to the north and south, Elbing and Thorn. But its important location secured sufficient income from trade and commerce. The introduction of a postal service from Berlin to Koenigsberg in 1605 gave the city further importance since the route of the service crossed the river Vistula at Marienwerder.

The Marienwerder county along with other West Prussian counties belonged to the group of settlements which had to undergo a plebiscite after World War I at the request of Poland. On July 11, 1920, the West Prussian counties voted 92.5% to stay with Germany.

During World War II Marienwerder, the fortress and the city, suffered small damage but suffered tremendously from looting. One year after the end of World War II, the inner city with its old medieval buildings and covered walks became a victim of fire. Subsequently the core of the city was completely leveled by removal of all existing building material used to rebuild the city of Warsaw. Even the cobblestones of the streets were removed and shipped to Poland's capital. In 1965 the city counted 13,000 Polish inhabitants, compared to 20,000 Germans in 1936.

Due to the inadequacy of the then circulating paper emergency money of the Loan Society of Marienwerder and due to the speculation that profits could be made by the issuance of "Notgeld," the Marienwerder city council decided to have emergency coins minted in the amount of 20,000 marks. In August 1918, the city council applied to the governor's office for permission to have 3 pfennig pieces minted. Permission was granted and the city deposited 30,000 marks in Government bonds with the Reichsbank as security for the issue. Very significant is a file notice which says, "there is a collecting interest for all emergency money. Special success will depend on the originality of the design. For this reason holed money is preferable. Occasional mention of our emergency money in the press and offers in collector magazines should increase our sales position;" a stronger proof that the issuance of emergency money was not always in the interest of alleviating a shortage but was also considered strongly as a means of raising money for the community can hardly be produced. In any event the communities coupled the advantages with the necessities.

In the files of the city of Marienwerder, one finds designs of "original" emergency coins. Denominations of 3, 10, and 50 pfennig, having a hole in the middle, were suggested to carry an inscription around the hole, saying on the obverse "Marienwerder in 1918 issued this emergency money" and around the hole on the reverse the inscription "the hole in England's speculation."

However, in the end the "hole in the middle" design was not used, and a design as shown here was executed. Although the year on all coins is 1918, the manufacture took place in 1919.

The redemption of these coins started early in 1923 and ended on March 15, 1923. The records show that a Dr. C. Neubauer of Mannheim purchased 100 pieces of each value and that a W. Kittel of Camburg had offered to take the rest. No further word was heard from Kittel however. The redemption showed the following results:

4,900 fifty pfennig pieces

7,500 ten pfennig pieces

300 five pfennig pieces.

This remainder stock was to be sold for its metal worth, but the records do not give any indication of its disposal.

City of Neidenburg, East Prussia

111 Neidenburg

5 - 10 - 50 pfennig

Far south of Allenstein, already beyond the lakes region, in a bulge near Poland is located the city of Neidenburg on the little Neide River. As the name indicates, Neidenburg (Burg—Fortress) also was founded around a fortress. It has, as do most East Prussian cities, the sober, rectangular form of the colonist settlements, on whose market place stands the city hall, free and domineering. In the war years of 1806/07 the city contracted a debt of 179,426 thalers. After this time of need, the affairs of the city improved steadily. In 1888, it was connected to the railroad and the road network was improved continuously. During World War I, on August 22, 1914, a troop of Cossaks occupied the city temporarily and looted the city down to the bare minimum. Two hundred houses were burnt as was the church. At the plebiscite of 1920 the Neidenburg county voted with 22,233 votes for Germany and only 330 for Poland. The population of Neidenburg in 1925 was approximately 6,500.

Neidenburg commissioned the firm of Brothers Kugel & Fink in Luedenscheid to have three denominations minted, the 5, 10, 50 pfennig values. The design on all 3 was the same, except for the denomination on the reverse. Between two bushes a Wild Man is standing, holding in his right hand a short sword, in his left a lily. The order was placed on November 18, 1918, delivery took place on February 8, 1919 and March 14, 1919. The design of the coins resembled the coinage of Soldau, (to be treated later in this article.)

There are no records dealing with the disposal of the redeemed pieces, if any. It appears that most of the coinage disappeared slowly as in other cities and communities. On June 19, 1922, the council wrote to Brothers Kugel & Fink and asked for the submission of some samples of the 1918/19 minted emergency coins in order to put them into the city's archives. The letter states that no coins were on hand in the city administration and none were to be found in circulation.

112 Kreis Osterode

10 - 20 pfennig

East Prussia always has been exposed to the storms from the east. Icy winds bringing frost to the fields, and the flames of the war rages destroying cities and villages. After such wars, weeds covered the fields and the thresholds of the homes, and in winter wolves came over the ice of the lakes into the empty towns. Twice the vicinity of Osterode became the scene for bitter fighting with the adversary from the east. In 1410 when Poles, Lithuanians and Tartars under King Wladislaw Jagiello overpowered the Teutonic Knights under Konrad von Jungingen, and again in 1914 when Field Marshal von Hindenburg vanquished the superior and mighty Narew army near the small hamlet of Tannenberg. The impressive Tannenberg monument was erected to bear witness to Hindenburg's tactical talents. He and his wife were later buried there. In 1945 fearing the approach of the Russian armada, the Nazis dynamited the monument. The corpses of Hindenburg and his wife were transferred to Marburg. The city of Osterode founded in 1330 by Luther von Braunschweig is located on Lake Drewenz and had a population of 18,000 in 1939. The fortress of the Teutonic Knights between Pausen and Drewenz Lake dominated the road from Elbing to Ortelsburg.

The county of Osterode is especially meaningful for me since I was born in a small village of 2,000 in the northwest of Osterode, 10 miles away.

It appears that the issuance of emergency coins for the Osterode County was arranged by the county bank, but no official documents are available to prove this. The bank on January 17, 1920, writes, however, "that in the county of Osterode emergency coins were only put into circulation in the year 1917." These were 10,000 ten and twenty pfennig pieces, made of white processed zinc, in round form. The pieces were manufactured by the firm of Otto Christmanns in Leipzig.

The design is interesting in that it shows the year 1917 on the obverse along with the shape of the Iron Cross imprinted with the "W" of Emperor Wilhelm, the crown and the year 1914, a replica of the award given to German soldiers for bravery in World War I.

City of Pillau, East Prussia

113 Pillau

Pillau is first documented in about 1430. It was founded near the sea trench which was closed later. The trench as it is known today developed in 1497 and has been navigable since 1510. Pillau acquired importance through the landing of King Gustav Adolf of Sweden, who occupied it and built an armed settlement which later, under the Great Elector, became a citadel. Near the citadel a Dutch colony developed and in 1680, under the General Marine Director Benjamin Raule, a shipyard was built. During the occupation of 1759/60, the Russians improved the port facilities, especially bettering and extending the defense dam which since then is called the "Russian Dam." Pillau never acquired an economical bloom of her own. The wholesale traders kept their headquarters in Königsberg. Some lift was given to the city however, through the building of the sea channel from Pillau via the Fresh Bay (Frisches Haff) to Königsberg. Since 1920, the opening of the "Sea Service East Prussia," which bypassed the Polish corridor with its passenger ships, brought new importance, trade and commerce to Pillau. The ships travelled from Travemuende, Swinemuende and Zoppot to Pillau. Since 1936 the city name has been coupled with the term "seaport." The population in 1939 had grown to about 10,000 including all suburbs. The great capacity of the port facility of Pillau made it possible to save many East Prussians and troops by ship from capture by the Russian advancing troops in the East Prussian pocket in the year 1945.

Only one denomination of emergency money was commissioned by the city of Pillau in 1917—the fifty pfennig piece. The obverse shows the trademark of the city, a crowned sturgeon. Below this emblem one sees the mint mark of the manufacturing firm. HK for Heinrich Kissing. This firm, located in Menden, Westphalia, received the order to make 15,000 fifty pfennig pieces in zinc on June 22, 1917. The coins were to be fashioned after the example of the coinage of the city of Hagen. The Heinrich Kissing company delivered 15,075 pieces on August 7, 1917, and writes: "the coins were not counted here, but the number was established by weight on a per 100 basis. Since the planchets as used do not all have a uniform thickness, it can happen that if the coins are all counted another figure may be obtained."

The coins do indeed show small differences in thickness of planchet.

The chief of the province of East Prussia, due to the unfavorable view of the Berlin government towards emergency coinage, requested the city of Pillau to announce the redemption of the emergency money and demonetization of same. The requested date was not later than October 1, 1918. The council of the city, however, was able to mobilize the various parties in the city (custom bureau, railroad depot, food agency, depot of the artillery, post office and other commercial enterprises) to register their concern and complaint that such action would mean a hardship on their daily business and transactions. Such concerted action was so successful that the province government in Koenigsberg not only agreed to an extension, but also issued advice to its communities to accept the emergency money and help circulate it in order to overcome the small change shortage.

The final date for the redemption was set for the end of the year 1920. Until October 5, 1921, an amount of 2,055 pieces were handed in. Bank officer R. Markstein of Schweidnitz purchased 60 pieces. An even larger part was defaced by cutting into it. The fate of the remainder is not known from the files of the city.

50 pfennig value

5 - 10 - 50 pfennig

This is home-country for me. I spent the first 20 years of my life in this small city. In 1255 the Bishop of Pomesanian, after the division with the Order, picked Riesenburg as his Bishopric seat. The second bishop Albert in 1276/77 at high shores of the Castle Lake (Schloss See) built a fortress to serve as his residence. The bishop seldom ever lived in Marienwerder where he had built the cathedral. His successors therefore were often called the Bishops of Riesenburg. The castle was heavily damaged during the 13 years war, suffered from fire in 1698, and after part restoration burned down again in 1787. The church was built shortly after 1310 and an extension in stone added at the same time as the cathedral in Marienwerder was built in the first half of the 14th century. The rectangular, at the top slightly tapered, tower is one of the most valuable in the Teutonic Knights country. The Swedish occupation resulted in very high contributions and heavy fire damage to Riesenburg. A fire in 1688 nearly destroyed the whole town, including the church. In 1725, it was rebuilt again with the help from King Frederik William I. The population in 1937 was nearly 8,000 people. Heavy fighting during the month of January in 1945 destroyed many houses and public buildings.

The emergency coinage of Riesenburg is basically of 3 denominations, but there are many varieties due to different minting dates, and different shapes, and different arrangements of lettering. The scene on the obverse is the coat-of-arms of the city representing the giant (Riese) standing in the fortress gate (Burgtor). The inscription above the fortress gate says "In great times 1917." At the end of 1917, the council of Riesenburg agreed, due to many requests by the citizenry, to issue emergency money in the denomination of 5, 10, 50 pfennig in raw zinc. The city made these coins available to the businessmen but added a premium in order to recover the minting costs. This led to complaints, as in the case of the director of the local sugar refinery who refused to pay

15.60 mark on a 200 mark emergency coin batch reasoning: "... later at redemption of these coins a part of the coins will be retained as mementos or will be lost. The city could then use this profit in order to pay for the minting of the coins."

This argument was quite proper because the city of Riesenbug replied to the city of Marienwerder when the latter inquired about the experiences with emergency money, that they had so much loss due to collectors' interest that the expense for the city would be hardly noticeable.

The minting for the city was quite complex. Initially it took place in zinc; later when this metal was no longer available, in iron, octagonal and round. All pieces were inscribed with the year 1917; although the minting extended through the year 1921.

The deadline for the demonitizing of the emergency coinage issue of Riesenbug was set for October 1, 1921. The city complained, however, about the hardships, since the Reichsbank had still not come through with sufficient small change coins and the post office still used postage stamps in lieu of change. The complaint resulted in an extension of the deadline to May 31, 1922. The city council in its records shows that quite a number were redeemed. In detail, 7,893 five pfennig, 12,020 ten pfennig and 8,611 fifty pfennig pieces came back. The city made a net profit of 25,545.74 marks on the issuance of "Notgeld coins." Whatever happened to the numerous varieties which were returned, the files and records of the city do not indicate.

Varieties of this coinage are based on the different arrangement and distances between letters in the inscription around the fortress gate, the relation of the little towers on top of the fortress gate to the letters . . ER . . and . . ZE . . . Also in the fifty pfennig design the basis of the door structure is smooth on one variety and shows the mortar seams on the other.

City of Saalfeld, East Prussia

115 Saalfeld

5 - 10 - 50 pfennig

It is no accident that the city of Saalfeld founded at the edge of Lake Ewing bears the same name as her sister city in Thuringia, since the chief of the Teutonic Order in Christburg, Sieghart von Schwarzburg who gave this East Prussian settlement city rights in 1305, came from Thuringia. It must also be assumed that many of the early settlers were brought to Saalfeld from their native Thuringia. Saalfeld had the only monastery of the Upper Land. It was founded in 1480 by Franciscan monks and abolished soon after the Reformation. In 1751 the city, together with Lyck and Tilsit, received an institution of higher learning. This institution prepared many eminent men who later went to Koenigsberg university. The population of Saalfeld in 1937 was 3,074.

The obverse of the emergency coins of the city of Saalfeld shows the coat-of-arms, Apostle John in a boiling oil kettle on a flaming wood pile.

The order for the coins was placed with the firm of Otto Christmann in Leipzig. Delivery took place on September 4, 1918, and by September 24, all coins were in circulation. As in other cities the council of Saalfeld lodged serious complaints against the early redemption of this emergency coinage. They reasoned that the Reichsbank had been unable to provide sufficient small change. The post office had just recently mentioned to the mayor that the emergency coinage effectively relieved the problem of small change. Later on in a letter of June 2, 1920, the council reports that the 5 and 10 pfennig pieces of emergency coinage had disappeared from circulation without having been officially redeemed by the issuing authorities. The new 50 pfennig pieces issued by the Reichsbank, the council knew only from description; they had never seen a single piece. The circulation was then extended by the province administration to July 1, 1920, and later to the end of the year 1920 and finally to June 30, 1921. The redemption was completed by January 1, 1922. The files do not indicate how many were presented for exchange. It is known however, that a Dr. E. Scharf of Mundenheim, Rhine-Palatinate purchased coins in the amount of 101.10 marks. Further, another quantity in the amount of 250.00 marks was sold. The whereabouts of the remainder are unknown.

City of Sensburg, East Prussia

number 116 on the map

116 Sensburg

10 - 50 pfennig

This settlement was founded in 1397 by the Grand Master of the Teutonic Order, Konrad von Jungingen. Although Sensburg was saved from the war rages of the early 15th century, it developed slowly. The major reason for the lack of development lay in the high tax burden, due to the peculiar city charter. During the war 1520/21, the so-called "Rider War," the city was set on fire and looted by the Poles. The peace of Krakau brought some quiet and established a basis for recuperation and a slow bloom. This constant recovery was interrupted again by the assault of the Tartars in the middle of the 17th century. To complete the bad luck, the plague broke out in Sensburg in 1657. During the 7 Year War, Sensburg was in the hands of the Russians for 4 years. Without the reparations, the actual war damage caused by the French army amounted to 42,132 thalers. The city suffered much less from war damages caused during World War I than its neighboring settlements. During the plebiscite of 1920 on the whole of Sensburg county, 34,334 voted for Germany, 25 for Poland. The population of this city in 1925 was 7,412.

The emergency coins of Sensburg do not bear any year. The first issue, made of zinc, of 20,193 ten pfennig pieces and 8,200 fifty pfennig pieces was delivered in 1917, while the second, 39,330 ten pfennig and 20,675 fifty pfennig pieces, was made from iron in 1918. L. Chr. Lauer in Nuremberg was the firm commissioned for the minting.

The obverse of the design shows a cut-off bear paw, above and below which, the inscription ANNO 1348, refers to the year of founding of the little hamlet Seehesten, the first settlement in the county of Sensburg. Initially, the office of the president of the province refused to authorize the striking of emergency coins. After submitting more convincing evidence of the coin shortage by council, permission was given so that the first order went out on May 3, 1917. Soon, however, the quantity of coins received, proved inadequate. Again permission was sought to strike a second order. The office in Allenstein referred the city to the Reichsbank branch in Sensburg for supplies of the regular coinage. This branch wrote in a letter of September 30, 1918, that only about 500 marks worth of five and ten pfennig pieces a month were put into circulation which was in no way considered adequate. Fifty pfennig pieces had not even been seen by the Reichsbank branch for a considerable length of time. They recommended that the issuance of emergency coins be continued to fulfill the demands for change. Based on this information, a second authorization was granted by the province government and the order for batch number two went out on October 11, 1918.

There are no official records or documents for the demonitizing, redemption and disposal of these coins.

The ten pfennig piece made of zinc in the year 1917 has a variety due to the different shape of the figure 1 on the reverse. This variety is not known in the iron 10 pfennig of 1918.

City of Soldau, East Prussia

Stadt Soldau
(Township)

5 - 10 - 50 pfennig

After the borders between the territory of the Teutonic Knights and Masovia were settled in 1343, Gunther v. Hohnstein, the Commander of the Order in Osterode, founded the city of Soldau in 1349. The city was planned and laid-out after the colonial style, in a rectangular fashion, with parallel streets, a rectangular market place and two main gates. The city acquired only a limited importance by being on the road from Koenigsburg to Warsaw. The population of about 6,000 was divided into a German upper class and a lower class speaking the Masovian dialect. The fortress of the order later fell in ruins due to war rampages and fires, which greatly hampered its development. In World War I it was a focal point during the battle of Tannenberg. The city's fate was determined by its location at the crossroad of several important railroad routes. To get the railroad Warsaw-Mawa-Thorn into Polish hands after World War I, the city of Soldau and its surrounding territory was taken away from Germany without plebiscite and given to Poland in accordance with the terms of the Versailles Treaty.

Several times the majority of the population, which was German, expressed its wishes to remain with the German motherland, but nothing was done.

The obverse of the emergency coinage shows the Holy Catherine, wearing crown and cape, in the right hand a piece of a wheel, in the left leaning on a sword, standing in an ornamented doorway. At her side is the coat-of-arms of the Commander of the Teutonic Order, Gunther von Hohnstein, the founder of the city.

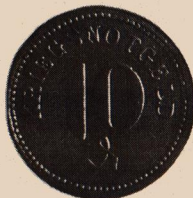

Two types of emergency coins existed in Soldau. One was issued by the city and the other by the so-called "Loan Society" (Vorschuss Verein.) The money of the city is round while the coins of the Loan Society are octagonal. The city money is iron, zinc coated, while the Loan Society's coins are made from zinc. The design of the Holy Catherine is used on both types of coins. The city money was made by the firm of Brothers Kugel & Fink in Luedenscheid. It is not known who made the coinage for the Loan Society, although the style, especially of the reverse, points to L. Chr. Lauer in Nuremberg. The 50 pfennig pieces of the city issue have a reeded edge, the other denominations, the 5 and 10 pfennig pieces, have smooth edges. The city was, as mentioned before, after 1919 under Polish administration. It was impossible to get official files or documents. The number of coins redeemed and the disposal of them is therefore unknown.

City of Thorn, West Prussia

number 118 on the map

118 Thorn

10 - 50 pfennig

Thorn has a very proud history. It was called the "Queen on the Vistula," due to its importance as a trading and commerce center from its founding on. It was founded in 1231 as a castle by the Order of the Teutonic Knights. The first Peace of Thorn in 1411 was a shortlived interval during the struggle between Poland and the Knights. The second Peace of Thorn in 1466 gave Poland access to the Baltic Sea and overlordship of the domain of the Knights. The city passed to Prussia in 1793 but was given to Poland again in 1919 under the terms of the Treaty of Versailles. Thorn was the birthplace of Copernicus.

During the 7 Years War Thorn was occupied by Russian troops from 1758-62. The city became a member of the East German railroad net in 1861. In 1828 the city had a population of 11,265; in 1943 78,224 people lived there.

The emergency coinage was issued in the denominations of 10 and 50 pfennig. The obverse shows an angel holding the shield with the coat-of-arms of the city in his two hands. The city council, during its session of April 11, 1918, decided to have 50,000 pieces each of the ten and fifty pfennig values made. The order was placed with the firm of Heinrich Aird in Nuremberg. Delivery was made in the beginning of May, 1918. As a guaranty for the redemption of the coins, the city deposited 30,000 marks in the form of German Warbonds at 5% with the Reichsbank in Thorn. The issue of these coins was never approved by the superior government offices because the council of Thorn claimed that such issues by the cities were authorized by the ministerial decree of December 15, 1916, and were not under the jurisdiction of the state. How long these coins have circulated and what happened to any redeemed pieces cannot be said any more. The files of the city, however, show that the 30,000 marks deposit in bonds were returned on July 10, 1919.

City of Tilsit, East Prussia

number 119 on the map

119 Tilsit

Tilsit until the end of World War II was occupied by 58,000 inhabitants. It is located immediately above the delta of the Niemen River (Memel) exactly where the hills of the left Niemen shores end and change slowly into the Low Lands. The city was founded shortly after 1400 around a fortress built at the mouth of the Tilse River. In 1806/07 the city was host to the ruling king and queen. Next to the castle mill, not far from the Niemen, stood the simple house in which Queen Luise lived. Here on July 6, 1807, she met Napoleon, a most humiliating experience. The next day on a raft in the Niemen River, the peace treaty, which was to have overly hard conditions for the Prussians, was signed. Prussia lost at that time half of its territories. Along the shores of the big river in later times one of Europe's largest cellulose factories was built, utilizing the huge amounts of lumber coming down the Niemen River. In the spring, the landscape around Tilsit is flooded regularly, forming often one huge lake area.

The emergency coinage of Tilsit comes in 2 values, the one and the fifty pfennig denomination. The 50 pfennig piece is peculiar in that it varies due to the different shape of the figure "2" in the figure " $\frac{1}{2}$." The coins also are not of equal weight due to different planchet thicknesses. The weight ranges from 3.88 to 6.03 grams, with an average of 5.33 grams for the variety with the larger value $\frac{1}{2}$ and 4.0 grams for the variety with the smaller value $\frac{1}{2}$.

The treasurer of the city on July 8, 1918, reported to the council that a great shortage of 1 pfennig bills existed. Subsequently on July 23, 1918, the council decided to order an issuance of 50,000 pieces of 1 pfennig and 25,000 of 50 pfennig. The order was not placed before August 22 with the firm of L. Chr. Lauer in Nuremberg. Samples were received on October 4, but rejected since details were too shallow. Lauer promised to engrave deeper and new samples were accepted on October 31, 1918. Delivery began on November 25, 1918, with the remainder being received on March 4, 1919. Soon more coins were needed and a second batch which was to be executed with the dies of 1918, was ordered. The smaller size of the value " $\frac{1}{2}$ " on the 50 pfennig pieces was used, however. There are no records about the demonitization and the redemption and eventual disposal of these coins.

The inscription on the reverse above the value " $\frac{1}{2}$ Mark" and 50 pfg. to the left and right reads "FUNF DITTCHEN." Dittchen is an East Prussian dialect standing for a ten pfennig piece, one dittchen is one 10 pfennig piece, similar to the American term "dime" for ten cents. "FUNF DITTCHEN" therefore are 50 pfennig or $\frac{1}{2}$ a mark.

City of Wartenburg, East Prussia

number 120 on the map

120 City of Wartenburg

On the north shore of Lake Wadang, Wartenburg was founded in 1337. In the northeast corner of the city lay the Bishopric fortress, protected by water from 3 sides. The city wall with its three gates was taken down after 1800. The city hall in the middle of the market place was built as a gothic stone building. It fell victim to fire several times and was rebuilt in a modern fashion using the old base. In the Hunger War of 1414 the castle and the city, including the monastery and church burned down completely; in later wars Wartenburg was not so involved however. In 1872, the city received a connection to the railroad through the Korschen-Allenstein line. The population in 1939 was 5,843 people.

The emergency coinage of Wartenburg in design and appearance is very plain. It shows on the obverse the word MAGISTRAT (council, administration) below the name of the city WARTENBURG OSTPR. In the middle, figures denoting the value of the coin as 10 or 50 pfennig. The reverse shows the value in the middle again and in a circular inscription the word KLEINGELDERSATZMARKE (small change substitute token.) There are 3 stars below the denomination. Both denominations have an octagonal shape.

The first batch of fifty pfennig coins was supplied in zinc, subsequent deliveries and all of the 10 pfennig issue came in iron. Issues were made in 1918 and 1919. The two deliveries of 10 pfennig pieces cannot be distinguished from each other, as opposed to the 50 pfennig pieces, which due to a different size in diameter, lead to two varieties in the iron category. On January 31, 1917, the city ordered 1,000 pieces of the 50 pfennig value in zinc from L. Chr. Lauer in Nuremberg. Contrary to belief in some quarters, 10 pfennig pieces were not made in zinc. Another order was placed in the year 1918 and Lauer supplied 4,300 fifty pfennig pieces in iron and 10,220 ten pfennig pieces. Despite these quantities, a shortage set in and the city contemplated minting more of the coins. They did not receive the permission of the county chief who wrote on June 6, 1918, that if there existed a shortage of small change the county would contemplate the minting of such emergency coinage. The province president supported this view and Wartenburg for the time being gave up its plans to order more emergency coins.

The Reichsbank was in no position to fill the city's demand for small change. The city received small coins from the Reichsbank in the following amounts: July 1918—250 marks; August 1918—500 marks; September 1918—100 marks; October 1918—250 marks; November 1918—100 marks.

Now the supervising authorities saw the issue in a different light and gave the permission to order more of the emergency coins. The minting of the 10 pfennig value took place with the old dies; the 50 pfennig values were somewhat smaller and lighter. Even the new order was soon absorbed in circulation and further efforts were made to have another order placed. The province president bound by the strict instructions he now had from the Ministry of Trade and Commerce in Berlin, ended the circulation of emergency coinage. Wartenburg therefore on January 24, 1922, closed the books on its emergency coinage venture. The results of the redemption campaign were:

120 pieces @ 50 pfennig in zinc
1,596 pieces @ 50 pfennig in iron
2,612 pieces @ 10 pfennig in iron.

Of these quantities Dr. E. Scharf in Mundenheim, Rhineland-Palatinate, purchased the 120 pieces in zinc, and 200 pieces each of the others. The whereabouts of the remainder is not known.

In addition to the emergency coinage issued by the cities, communities and counties of the provinces of East and West Prussia in Germany during the years 1916 to 1921, several private issues of tokens were made by commercial enterprises and individuals. Originally such tokens were only issued to alleviate shortages of change in factories and stores; they were not intended as substitutes for regular coins. They often lost this character, however, and found their way into the communities, other than the issuing stores or factories.

The other group of emergency money issued by communities, the paper bills, are today quite plentiful, and in many instances, mint fresh bills can be obtained, since the industry of making these series bills for the collector only, prospered during the years of small change shortage in Germany.

The emergency coins in general however, and the ones of the provinces of East and West Prussia, were all in circulation. They are now already difficult to acquire and will be scarcer, even, in the future. The prices I had to pay to dealers in Germany came very close to the values as shown in Walter Funck's book "Die Notmuenzen."

It may be said that almost any accumulation of minor foreign coins that a beginning collector acquires will contain at least a few "Notgeld"; I believe it will be awfully hard though to find any "Notgeld" coins of the types treated in this article of the emergency coins of East and West Prussia. The mintage figures for most of them were just too low.

Harvey C. Varner

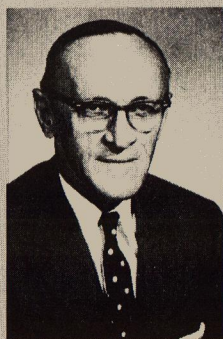

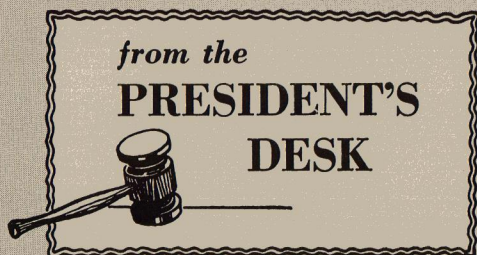

Harvey C. Varner
 ANA 20615

Services for Harvey C. Varner, 75, of Valparaiso, Ind., were held October 5, 1970, following his death at Porter Memorial Hospital following a lengthy illness. The family had requested that any memorials be given to the Cancer Society.

Born May 4, 1895, in Cincinnati, Ohio, he had lived for 73 years in Valparaiso. A veteran of World War I, Varner was a life member of Charles Pratt American Legion Post 94, a 50-year member of F and AM Lodge 137, and a member of the American Numismatic Association, joining in 1953. He was also a member of the Calumet Numismatic Society, the Valparaiso Coin Club and several other groups.

Surviving besides his widow, Zella, are two daughters, two sons, five grandchildren, and two sisters.—CL.

Herbert M. Bergen President

It was my privilege to represent the ANA as its president at a meeting of the Coins and Medals Advisory Panel to the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission held in Washington, D. C., the last week in September. A position paper was presented by me to the panel which reaffirmed the points that were previously made by me and reported in my presidential message published in the September issue of The Numismatist.

The votes of the panel on the various aspects and proposals made by panel members were generally in agreement with the stand that was taken in my position paper. It was especially gratifying that there was a unanimous support of the proposal that a fractional 50-cent fractional currency note should be issued in 1976 to commemorate the bicentennial celebration. The only questions that remained to be settled were those relating to design and distribution to the public. These are administrative matters that will not present any serious problems. We are now most anxious to know what will happen when the report of the Advisory Panel is placed before the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission at its meeting on October 27. With both the directors of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and the U.S. Mint in favor of this paper money issue, we confidently expect that it will be approved by the commission.

If the commission approves the fractional currency issue and likewise approves the other recommendations for coins and medals made by the Advisory Panel, it will mark another important accomplishment for numismatics in which the ANA has recently taken an active part. The members of ANA can be justly proud of these accomplishments, in the interest of numismatics.

On this optimistic note, we wish to express thanks to all the many members who have helped us reach the various objectives that were set out for accomplishment at the start of this administration. At this time, it is also fitting to wish everyone the best of everything for the holiday season and for a notable numismatic 1971.

A Christmas Opportunity From The National Gallery of Art

The National Gallery of Art is a bureau of the Smithsonian Institution created by Congress in 1937 as a result of Andrew Mellon's gift to the nation of his important collection of works of art and a monumental gallery building. The gallery is charged with the responsibility of assembling and maintaining a national collection of paintings, sculptures, and the graphic arts, representative of the best in the artistic heritage of America and Europe.

Located in Washington, D.C., it is one of the largest marble structures in the world. The paintings and sculptures given by Mellon comprise works by many of the great masters from the 13th to the 19th century. Before the gallery even opened to the public, Samuel H. Kress presented his great collection of paintings and sculptures of the Italian schools, ranging from the 13th thru 18th centuries. This collection consisted of approximately 1300 objects: over 100 statuettes and reliefs, more than 700 medals and coins, and over 450 plaquettes. A number of the unique pieces have been copied and cast reproductions directly from the originals are available to collectors. The surfaces have been finished with careful fidelity to resemble the original. Each reproduction is identified and boxed for mailing.

This Christmas brings to mind one piece that is most apropos. It is an 8½" plaquette, ready for hanging—The Madonna and Child with Four Angels. This is attributed to Donatello, one of the greatest medallic sculptors to have ever lived, c.1386-1466, Florence. Illustrated here, it is catalogue no. 1007 and sells for $15.00, including mailing charges within the U.S.

Collectors can obtain a list of other offerings by writing for list no. 7—sculpture reproductions, and list no. 7a—jewelry, from the Publications Fund, National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C. 20565.

CENTURY OLD NOTES

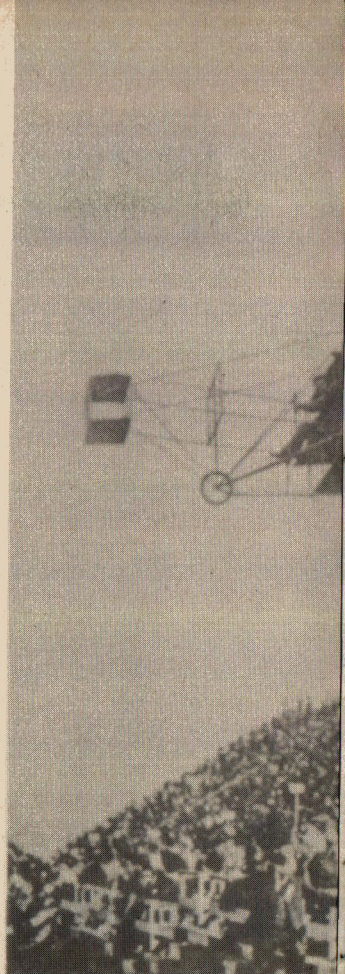

"In presenting the following dictionary of the terms in use by the majority of numismatists in the United States, we are actuated by two motives: one to furnish a guide to the novice; the other to urge upon collectors the necessity of adopting a few proper terms that correctly designate the condition and variety of a coin, medal, etc., and thus dispense with the useless and meaningless titles and phrases now of such common occurrence."

Medals Struck in Connection with Early Aeronautical Meets

by Arthur L. Newman, ANA 48325

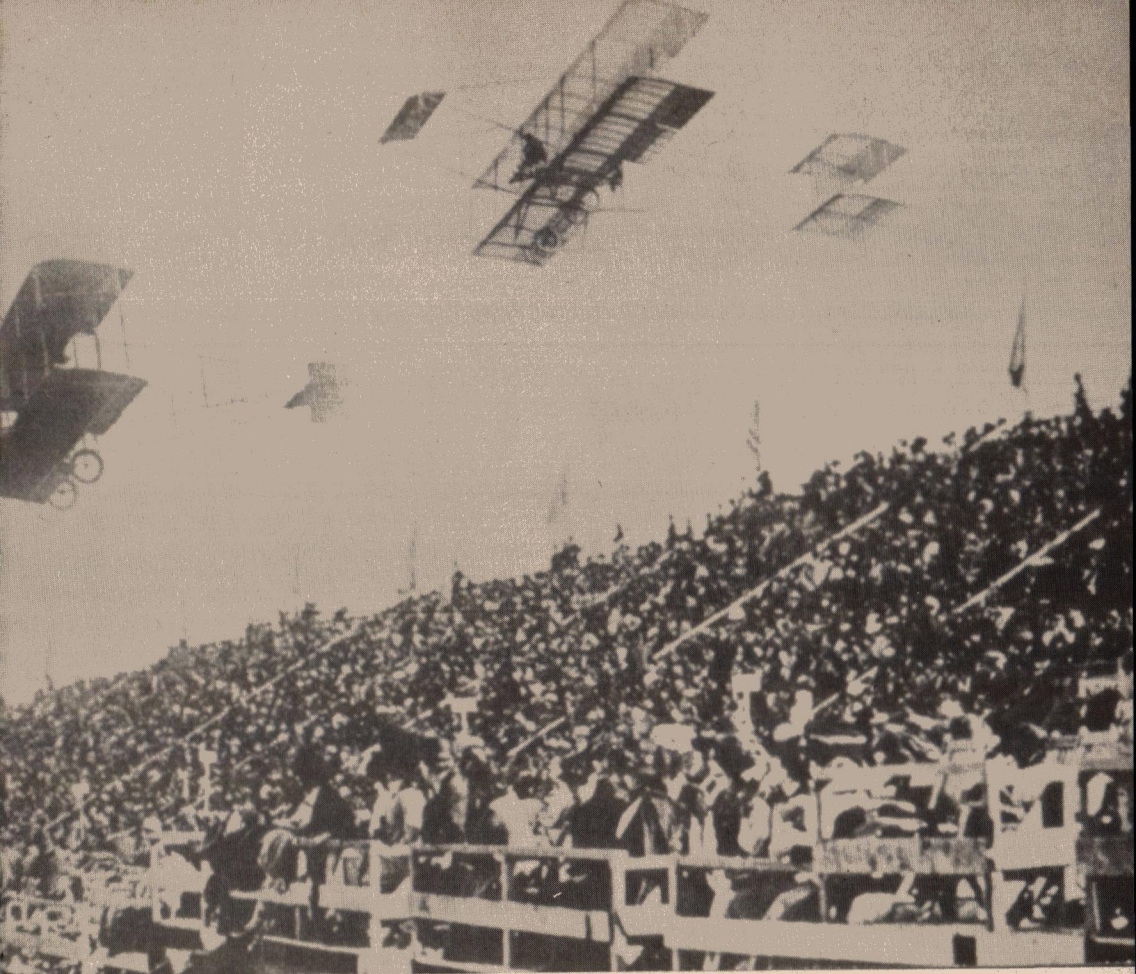

The author bases this series of articles on aviation medals from material in his own collection. This series has appeared in continuous December issues of The Numismatist since 1965. In addition to researching and cataloguing commemorative aviation medals, the author has offered to serve as a clearing-house for information about them. His address is 99 Park Avenue, New York.

Photo at right: Glenn Curtiss is seen leading Louis Paulhan of France, at Los Angeles in 1910 during the first air race held in the U.S. Paulhan went on, not only to win the $10,000 grand prize, but to establish a new world's altitude record of 4,165 feet, as well.

THE FLIGHTS of Orville and Wilbur Wright at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, on December 17, 1903, conclusively demonstrated controlled flights in a heavier-than-air machine. However, for a variety of reasons, including the Wrights' fear of piracy of their invention, their aversion to personal publicity and the limited means of communication then available, few people learned of the achievement. Moreover, many of those who heard or read of the 1903 flights did not believe what they heard or read. It was not until 1908, when Wilbur Wright made over one hundred flights in France and his brother Orville, in September of that year, flew U.S. Army acceptance trials at Fort Meyer, Virginia, that the general public became aware that airplanes could take off under their own power, fly a planned course and return safely to their starting place. Progress was rapid after the events mentioned, particularly in France.

It is not surprising that the first significant airplane meet in history took place in France. In 1909, an aviation week was held at Reims from August 22nd to August 29th and was attended by almost all the famous pilots and constructors of the day, except the Wright Brothers who were busy in the United States. There were prizes for speed, height of flight and passenger-carrying ability. On the opening day, twenty planes were aloft, a remarkable achievement at such an early date in the development of the airplane. New records were established daily. Glenn Curtiss and Louis Bleriot were the stars of the week-long event. The former came into international prominence by winning the Gordon Bennett Trophy for speed in flight. The conservative New York Times referred to the meet as a "week of miracles." A token was distributed to those who attended:

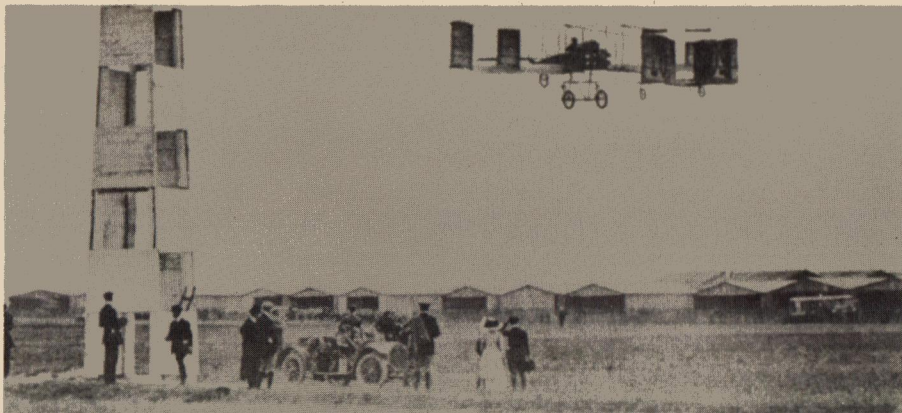

Obverse: Shows a plane in flight, encircled by the legend: GRAND CONCOURS D'AVIATION REIMS 1909.

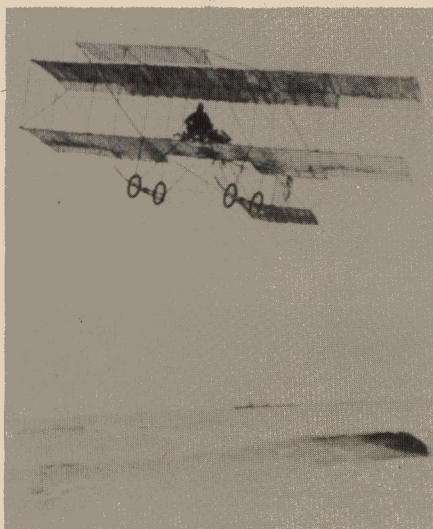

Reverse: Carries the information: GALERIES REMOISES - IMMENSES/AGRANDISSEMENTS / SUPERFICIE / DE PLUS / DE 3000 METRES.

Aluminum, circular and 1 7/16" (37 mm) in diameter.

In 1910, aviation meets were held at many European cities. In April of that year, at a meet held at Nice, France, the outstanding event was a successful flight of six aeroplanes over the sea from Nice to Cap Ferrat and return. A small medal, which has not weathered well, was distributed to participants.

A Voisin biplane piloted by Louis Paulhan is seen here at the first Reims airmeet in 1909. America's Glenn Curtiss won the Gordon Bennett speed trophy here.

A Farman biplane piloted by M. van der Borren is shown coming in for a landing just a few feet above the water at the Nice meeting held in April 1910.

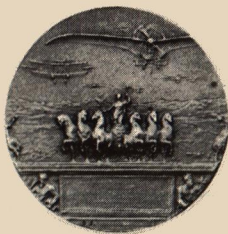

Obverse: Shows a monoplane in flight over the harbor of Nice.

Reverse: In the center is the seal of the City of Nice and the date: APRIL 1910. At the top, around the perimeter, the name: VILLE DE NICE. At the lower portion, under a propeller, the legend: CONCOURS D'AVIATION.

Iron composition, circular and $1 \frac{7}{32}$ " (32 mm) in diameter, with link attachment at top.

Later in the year, an international meet took place at Milan, Italy, and a medal was struck in its honor.

Obverse: A monoplane and, on the background, a biplane are seen flying over one of Milan's famous statues.

Reverse: Contains the legend: CIRCUITO AEREO / INTERNAZIONALE / MILANO / 1910. Bronze, circular and $1 \frac{3}{16}$ " (31mm) in diameter.

One of the earliest airplane meets held in the United States was organized by the Harvard Aeronautical Society and took place at Squantum, Massachusetts, in September, 1910. Large cash prizes, aggregating $100,000., were contended for by leading English and American aviators. In hindsight, the two main events may be said to have been a bomb dropping contest on the outline on the ground of a battleship and sharp shooting from a plane against ground targets. The most publicized event was a race around the Boston Lighthouse for a $10,000 prize offered by the Boston Globe. The race was won by the dashing English aviator, Claude Grahame-White. A medal with a ribbon and pin attachment was given to honored guests.

Obverse: In the top center, shows a biplane in flight. In a panel around the upper perimeter is the legend: HARVARD & BOSTON AERO MEET SEPT. 3-13. At the bottom, the date 1910 is superimposed on a pair of wings.

Reverse: Blank except for the word GILT and the name of the striker: DIEGES & CLUST. Gilded bronze, oval, $1 \frac{3}{8}$ " (34 mm) x $1 \frac{21}{32}$ " (42 mm), with link attaching it to ribbon and decorative pin marked: GUEST.

During the last week of October, 1910, an international air meet was held at the Belmont Park race course near Mineola, Long Island, New York. Because Glenn Curtiss, an American, had won the Gordon Bennett speed trophy at Reims in 1909, the race would be run in the United States in 1910. The Aero Club of America had been given the right to select the site for the event. There were prizes aggregating more than $75,000, in addition to the Gordon Bennett cash prize, and a representative number of English, French and American pilots competed in various speed and distance events. Attendance at the meet became socially noteworthy and the pilots' achievements appeared daily as feature articles on the front page of the New York Times. An attractive medal was struck for the event.

Obverse: In the center, a biplane is flying into a fancifully pictured sun. In a panel around the perimeter is the legend: INTERNATIONAL AVIATION TOURNAMENT—1910.

Reverse: Blank except for the name of the striker: TIFFANY & CO.

Silver, circular, 1 5/32" (30mm) in diameter, with a ring and link attachment at the top.

In March 1912, the first international seaplane meet was held at Monaco. A number of float planes and one or two amphibians competed during the week beginning March 24th. Hugh Robinson was the only representative from the United States. It was this meet which prompted Jacques Schneider to announce the Schneider trophy race for the fastest seaplane. A plaque was struck in honor of the meet.

Obverse: A scene of artists and sportsmen with Monaco in the background. At the lower right, the name MONTECARLO and in a panel beneath, the information SAISON/1911-1912. At the right bottom, the name of the sculptor T. SZIRMAI.

Reverse: Shows a number of planes in flight and the legend: 1 er MEETING DES AÉROPLANES MARINS/ORGANISÉ/PAR L'INTERNATIONAL SPORTING CLUB/MONACO 1912. Also, in a fanciful panel, M. TONY SZIRMAI/SCULPTEUR.

Bronze, rectangular with domed top, 3 9/32" x 2 3/4" (84 mm x 71mm)

In 1913, a combined boat, auto and airplane meet was held at Monaco. A plaque was struck to commemorate it.

Obverse: In the center is a winged female figure and two seaplanes in flight over a speed boat. At the upper right, there is an inset of the profile head of M. Blanc, the organizer of the meet. At the top are the dates 1904 and 1913 and the motto: SIC ITUR AD ASTRA (Thus, the way to the stars). At the right extreme bottom is the name of the sculptor SZIRMAI and the date 1913. On the plaque pictured, there appears at the right center the phrase: EPREUVE/D'AUTEUR (author's proof). In the medal distributed there was substituted for this phrase the sculptor's name: M. T. SZIRMAI.

Reverse: In the center are the words: A/CAMILLE BLANC/CREATEUR DU PREMIER MEETING/DE CANOTS-AUTOMOBILES/ET HYDROAEROPLANES/1904-1913/SES COLLABORATEURS DE DIX ANS ONT/OFFERT CE SOUVENIR DE L'OEUVRE/IMPERISSABLE DE CIVILISATION ET DE/PROGRES ACCOMPLI PER LUI A MONACO/EN 1904. (To Camille Blanc, organizer of the first meet of boats, autos and hydroaeroplanes, his associates of the past 10 years have offered this memento of the imperishable work and progress accomplished by him at Monaco. In 1904, the motor boat reached a speed of 50 km an hour. In 1913, it did 80 km an hour. In 1911, the first hydroaeroplane rose from the water. In 1912 and 1913 occurred the first hydroaeroplane meets). At the base are the words: AINSI LE MOTEUR A EXPLOSION QUITTANT LE SOL CONQUIT/LA MER ET S'ELANCE TRIOMPHANT DES FLOTS DANS LES AIRS (Thus the internal combustion motor left the ground, conquered the sea and then triumphantly darted from the waves into the air).

Bronze, rectangular, 3" x 2 5/16" (76mm x 58mm).

In 1914 an aviation meet was again held at Monaco but the shadow of World War I limited participation. A medal was nevertheless struck to commemorate it.

Reverse: Shows the world famous gambling casino and two planes in flight under the name of MONTE CARLO. At the bottom, in a plaque, the information: INTERNATIONAL SPORTING CLUB/SAISON 1913-1914.

Bronze, circular 2 7/16" (63mm) in diameter.

A Pan American aeronautical meet was held in New Jersey from May 1 to May 31, 1919. It was under the joint direction of the Aero Club of America, the Aerial League of America and the Pan American Aeronautic Federation. There were aerial contests of all kinds, with prizes, many exhibits, and speeches by leaders in the field of aviation. A pin and attached shield were struck for this meet.

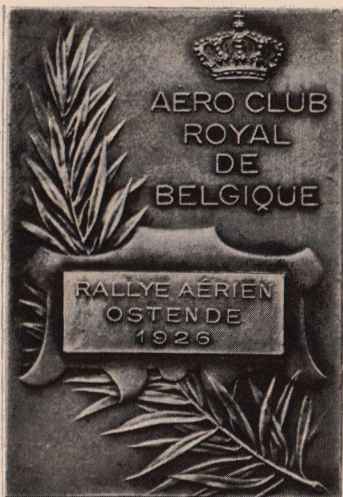

Obverse: Shield shows a dirigible, balloon and an airplane over the legend: 2nd PAN AMERICAN/AERONAUTIC EXPOSITION/ATLANTIC CITY/MAY 1919. It is attached by a link to a pin in the shape of an eagle's wings.

Reverse: Blank except for the name of the striker B. DAVIDOFF & CO. / N.Y.C.

Bronze, shield is 1 3/8" (80mm) x 1 1/4" (33 mm) and the pin has a maximum width of 1 3/4" (45 mm).

An aviation meet was held at Ostend, Belgium, in 1926, and a plaque was given to participants by the Belgian Royal Aero Club.

Obverse: A raised oblong in the center carries the legend: RALLYE AERIEN/OSTENDE/1926. At the upper right is the name: AERO CLUB/ROYAL/DE/BELGIQUE.

Reverse: Eagles on a mountain crag look up at an early vintage airplane in flight. At the lower right, is the name of the sculptor E. BLIN.

The plaque is bronze, rectangular 1 13/16" x 2 1/2" (41mm x 67mm).

In 1927 an aviation meet was held in Denmark and a small medal was issued to commemorate it.

Obverse: Shows a large single engine monoplane (probably a German Junkers) in flight. There is a beading just inside the perimeter.

Reverse: At the top shows a bird in flight. The legend reads: INTERNATIONAL/LUFT-FARTS-UDSTILLING/KOBENHAVN/1927. At the bottom are two crossed sprays of leaves.

Silver color metal, circular, 1 3/8" (34 mm) in diameter, with link and ring attachment at top.

The National Air Races, held annually at Philadelphia, Spokane and Los Angeles respectively from 1926 through 1928, were popular and drew great crowds. They were eclipsed, however, by the 1929 meet held at Cleveland, Ohio, at which there were about 500,000 paid admissions. From August 27 through September 2 there were many races and flying demonstrations, including for the first time blimps and gliders. The most noteworthy event was the winning of the Thompson Cup in a Free For All speed race by a civilian airplane, the Travel Air Mystery monoplane, which ran away from the highly favored army and navy Curtiss service aircraft, which in previous years had the speed events well in hand. A souvenir medal was issued at the meet.

Obverse: In the center is a rectangle with a biplane and two monoplanes circling it. The rectangle reads: 1929 / NATIONAL / AIR RACES / AND / AERONAUTICAL / EXPOSITION / CLEVELAND / AUG. 24-SEPT. 2. It also shows a biplane rounding a pylon. At the top, around the perimeter, are the words: NATIONAL AIR RACES and at the bottom, the words: AND AERONAUTICAL EXPOSITION. Below the rectangle is the information: CLEVELAND, O/AUG. 24 to SEPT. 2/1929.

Reverse: In the center is pictured the building where aircraft and accessories were displayed, over its name: PUBLIC AUDITORIUM. Around the perimeter is the legend: OFFICIAL SOUVENIR OF THE AIR CLASSIC OF THE CENTURY.

The medal is bronze, circular and 1 1/4" (31 mm) in diameter.

As in all previous articles on commemorative aviation medals, the medals described are in the writer's collection and he will attempt to answer any questions in this field. His address is 99 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016.

NEW & RECENT ISSUES

by Ernst Kraus, LM 129

It is the important duty of The Numismatist to record and illustrate new coins. To accomplish this, members in the United States and abroad are invited to submit new issues to Ernst Kraus, Room 939 (include room number in address), 393 Seventh Ave., New York, N. Y. 10001. Coins will be photographed and returned as soon as possible, and a credit line will be given to anyone assisting.

New and Recent Issues columnist, Ernst Kraus, spent several weeks in Europe this past summer. His observations will be used to introduce his column for the next few issues beginning with this edition. Here we present his notes on a tour of the Royal Mint in London. — Ed.

A Visit To London's Royal Mint

I had been informed that if I intended to visit the Royal Mint in London, I had to obtain a permit well in advance and specify the date as well as the time convenient, as only thirty minutes are assigned to each person. Within a few days I received the permit in the form of an official card, signed by the Deputy Mint Master.

On the morning of August 13, at 10:20 a.m., I handed my permit to the police inspector at the gate of the mint and was invited to step inside. With five other visitors, I was taken by an elderly guide into the old buildings, where the preparation for the coinage was in progress.

The guide tried his best to explain the various functions of the different machines. This was not easy, as we were standing between these machines and the noise was deafening. Even though the machines are all automatic, a good deal of manual labor is involved. The feeding and removing of the long strips of metal, bronze and copper-nickel requires inserting the strips to obtain the proper thickness. Stamping of the planchets and then a chemical bath and heating of the planchets follows, after which they are put into large containers above the coin presses. These presses may not be the latest type; however, they seemed to function perfectly well, producing large quantities of beautiful coins with great speed.

Our guide handed us some of the coins as they fell into a container at the side of the coin press. We had a chance to see a newly made large English 1 penny which was still dated 1967, none being made of a later date.

At another coin press, our guide removed the dies from the machine and handed these to us for closer inspection and examination of the fine workmanship, which compared closely to those of the finest cameos, only in reverse, of course. These were for the new Iraq, FAO 250 Fils 1970, in copper-nickel, to be released at the end of September. We were also shown the weighing and found that nearly all the coins had the correct weight.

The Royal Mint, parts of which were first built around 160 years ago, will cease operation and production of coins in a few months and will leave London without a Royal Mint in nearly one thousand years. However, the administration offices will remain for the time being at the same location.

The new mint in Llantrisant, South Wales, which was completed about a year ago, has been producing large quantities of decimal coins with the latest and most modern equipment obtainable. It is expected to produce between six to eight billion coins annually in the near future.

For me, it was a most unforgettable experience to be permitted to examine such an interesting and fascinating process at such close range.

CYPRUS

On October 16, the FAO's 25th anniversary, the island nation of Cyprus released a commemorative coin for the occasion. Struck at the Royal Mint in London, specimens will be made available to collectors in both uncirculated condition and proof. Uncirculated cupronickel coins in rigid plastic cases may be obtained from the Central Bank of Cyprus, P.O. Box 1087, Nicosia, Cyprus, or from the Crown Agents Coin Bureau, Sutton, Surrey, England, at $2 each, and proof silver coins in presentation cases, at $8 each (US.). There is a postage charge of 50¢ per order, and a clearance charge of 60¢ for non-sterling checks. The coin, which is primarily a commemorative, represents a new high denomination. It is one of the few modern coins without a rim, recalling the ancient coin on which the obverse is based.

Y-46. 500 mils, 1970. Cupronickel. Obverse: double cornucopia, taken from an ancient Cyprus coin of Ptolemy II, the Philadelphos (271-246 BC); CYPRUS in Greek, Turkish and English; to left FAO-UN 1945-1970. Reverse: youth holding a basket of fruit grown in Cyprus, after a 2nd century mosaic in Lamboussa, a village in northern Cyprus; value 500 (mils). Designed by Antis Ioannides and modelled by William Gardner. 70,000 struck for general circulation, 10,000 in plastic cases for collectors. Diameter: 36mm. Weight 22.6 gr. Edge: plain.

FRANCE

France has joined most other countries now in abandoning any attempt to keep silver coins in circulation. Since revaluation in 1960 the silver (.835) five franc coin has been issued in large quantities, but the change to cupronickel was "dictated by the fact that it is hoarded because of the attraction of precious metal and does not circulate enough to reply to needs," admitted the French government.

In observing a very old tradition dating back to the 12th century, the Paris Mint will also strike pieforts (double thickness specimens) of the new cupronickel five franc piece. Pieforts are like proofs in that they are struck on treated planchets, but have a smooth edge and are struck in limited quantity—500 cupronickel, 200 .950 silver, and 100 .920 gold. Further information on the availability of pieforts may be obtained by writing the Paris Mint at Administration des Monnaies et Medailles, 11, quai de Conti, Paris VI, France.

ST. THOMAS AND PRINCE

(S. TOME E PRINCIPE)

This is a Portuguese overseas province located on the Equator, off the west coast of Africa known as the Bight of Biafra. The islands were uninhabited when first discovered by European sailors in the mid-1700s, but late in the same century the Portuguese began settling convicts and exiled Jews on the island. The islands figured prominently in the slave trade of the 17th and 18th centuries. At the turn of this century the islands came into prosperity with the introduction of cocoa, but public opinion just before World War I caused the St. Thomas cocoa to be boycotted by manufacturers because it was harvested by virtual slave labor.

The Portuguese Mint at Lisbon has struck a commemorative coin in observance of the 5th centennial of discovery by Portuguese sailors.

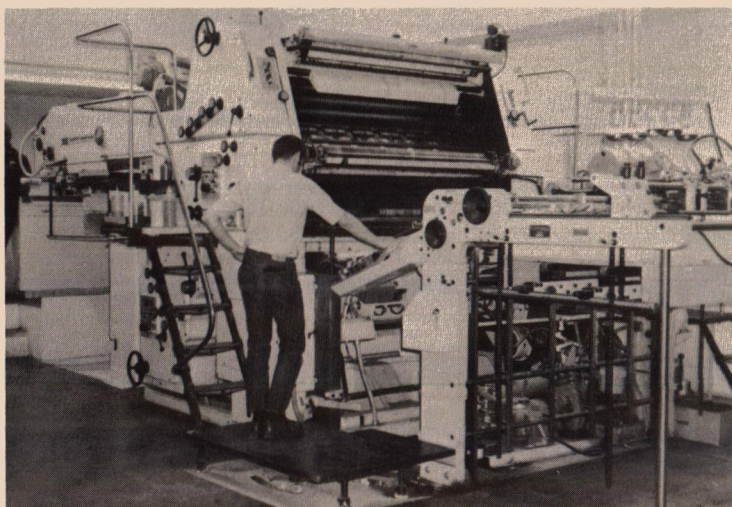

Y- .50 escudos, 1970. Silver. Obverse: Coat of arms of Portugal, arranged in the form of a cross in center; value below 50$00; legend around REPÚBLICA PORTU-

GUESA. Reverse: Arms of St. Thomas and Prince in center between dates 1470 - 1970; symbolic compass points form background design above with arms in exact center signifying the Equator; legend above, S. TOME E PRINCIPE; below V CENTENARIO. Diameter 34mm. Weight 18gr. Edge milled.

RIGHT BACK ON SCHEDULE!

See here is a giant sheet-fed offset press capable of producing 64 pages of The Numismatist at one time. The picture was taken at Deseret News Press, Salt Lake City, Utah, as a recent issue was being published. Needless to say, more members than not, have noticed that their magazine has not been on schedule. Their countless letters are evidence of this and we are happy to report that the printing is now back on schedule.

The delays were not the fault of the association, nor that of staff members. Our new printers, although well equipped to handle the job, far underestimated the magnitude of the job and failed to meet publication deadlines. A concerted effort on their part has remedied the situation and readers should once again look forward to receiving their magazines during the first week of every month.

FEATURING FAKES

DO YOU HAVE THE ORIGINAL?

Pat Johnson of Houston first brought to my attention this die-struck counterfeit, in silver, of the 1861 "Barrios pattern peso" of El Salvador, and gave me the information which causes me to wonder if these "gems" now . . . in 1970 . . . are being manufactured in this country.

The counterfeit you see above, struck from counterfeit dies, is of a very, very rare pattern which is shown on page 480 of the Catalogue of The Collection of Julius Guttag, New York, 1929. The "Barrios pattern peso" is listed as Guttag No. 4577-A, "patterns in copper and aluminum."

El Salvador texts don't occupy much space on my library shelves, so I do not know if there somewhere is a record of this "Barrios pattern peso" having been struck in silver and/or gold.

But, as I understand it from Pat, this year these things suddenly are being sold in gold, silver, bronze, and aluminum. I don't know how the counterfeiters overlooked platinum! If they're getting $3,000.00 for their gold counterfeits, they easily could get another grand for a platinum job. They already have the dies.

NOTE: If you've bought one of these "Barrios pattern pesos" . . . in any metal . . . during the past fifteen months, I'd like to hear from you. (Box 936, Bellaire, Texas 77401, will reach me.)

About four years ago a sharpie suddenly showed up in this country with a large quantity of quite scarce European crowns which he offered to dealers at fire-sale prices and not as singles but in quantity.

A friend of mine demanded that the sharpie reveal the sudden source of such rarities. The sharpie wouldn't give a satisfactory answer . . . not even to the federal grand jury in the Southern District of New York which later indicted him for selling those counterfeits. Yes, all his "rarities" were well-made counterfeits, many of which no doubt now are resting unsuspected in collections all over this country. But wait 'til the collector tries to sell his gem!

Incidentally, you'll be relieved to know that at least that one sharpie no longer is around to gyp any coin dealer or collector.

Ever since then, whenever a rarity suddenly starts showing up in any surprising quantity, before I'll buy such a specimen I feel justified in asking for documentation or verification of the sudden source.

If the seller won't give me a straight and provable answer, I just don't buy. Then I know I can't get burnt.

At the top of this page is another counterfeit of a rarity-of-rarities . . . this one a cast counterfeit of a 1732 Mexico mint silver 8 reales.

In buying this 1732 dated fake, it only cost the collector $1,900.00 to learn the lesson that in the future he should demand to know the source of such a rarity before he buys it.

This is the second cast counterfeit 1732 Mexico 8 reales I've seen this year.

They're made from an altered date coin which is being used as the pattern for making the molds into which the counterfeiter flings his molten silver.

Most of today's counterfeit silver and gold coins have the full amount of precious metal. But on these 1732 jobs the counterfeiter chisels even on the silver content, and the things are light in weight.

Before I close this installment, I want to answer some of the questions I've had tossed at me about ANAT's status today.

No decision as to ANAT's locale will be made until the ANA operating committee takes over. Washington, D.C., or New York City are the only two possible spots to locate this authenticating service. Each city has its advantages.

Over forty percent of the $50,000 figure, which total we hit on the last day of ANA-St. Louis, comprised pledges to be paid when we'd reach that $50,000 figure. Payments have been coming in very well, and we expect to receive the remaining five per cent before this issue goes to press.

Once we collect that final five per cent, then the special operating committee, named by ANA's board of governors, will take over.

In the meantime, I'd still like to see ANAT start operations with an extra $10,000 to equalize the inflation during the nearly four years since the idea of ANAT was born. So, any club, any collector, any dealer, not yet contributing, please dust off that check-book and send in your check, made payable to ANAT.

You'll never be sorry!

Oh, yes, the contributions are tax-deductible.

HERE'S HOW TO WRITE AN ARTICLE

The young numismatist of today has a fresh, unique and individual approach to numismatics. He is willing to use his talents to exhibit and write if given the proper guidance and encouragement. There have been a number of articles written on how to exhibit but none on how to write an article. The purpose of this article is to fill the gap between articles on how to exhibit and how to write. It is hoped that the young numismatist will find the following guidelines helpful in preparing his article(s).

First: Pick an area of numismatics in which you are interested in. The higher your interest, the more time and effort you will put into your article.

Second: Read other articles. Try to get a feel of what you are about to do. Look for the different styles and approaches which the authors use in their articles. If you want, pick one style, or combine several, which you feel comfortable using.

Third: Research your area. Some basic reference books are Carlson's Coins of the World; Hobson's, Coin Identifier; Rein-feld & Chamberlain's, Coin Dictionary and Guide; Narbeth's, Coin Collectors Encyclopedia; and Mosher's, Coin Mottoes and Their Translations (ANA reprint). For books in your area, check with each of the following: the ANA library, the ANS library, your local library, and if you know of or belong to a local coin club, their library. Also, check with other collectors and dealers in your community, especially those with the same collecting interest. Next, look through a numismatic bibliography for books under your topic. (Note: A numismatic bibliography is invaluable to anyone who wants to write or exhibit.)

Fourth: Do not copy word for word from your sources. Any information you take from your sources should be either paraphrased or summarized. The only way you can copy word for word from your sources is when you put the phrase or sentence in quotes and give proper acknowledgement.

Fifth: If while you are doing your research you come across two opposing views, give both views in your article. State the pros and cons of both views, then give your own view. Maybe you will agree with one view and not the other. Or maybe you will differ with both, drawing a third view. The important thing is to show that you are thinking. If you can evaluate rationally the numismatic evidence presented you, you will develop into a fine numismatist.

Sixth: Give some background material—history. Tell why the coins you are writing about are worth reading about. Encyclopedias are helpful for general history but one should not stop here. The best source is the history department of your local library. Try to blend in with the historical data some unique or amusing facts which will make the reading more interesting.

Seventh: Give a full description of the coins. A separate description for the obverse and reverse should be given. Include as many of the following as you possibly can: the issuing authority; the place of origin; who used the money; was it discontinued and why; was it accepted by the public; where did it circulate; why was it issued; any nickname for the coin; the composition; the millimeter size; the number of pieces struck; who designed the coin; the denomination; any scene, symbol, inscription or date on the coin; and is the edge plain, reeded, ornamental, symbolic or inscribed. The length of your description will depend on the amount of information known on the coin and your ability to find it.

Eighth: Give translations. If you want your readers to understand the significance of the coin and show them that you have done your research, give translations. Most department stores have inexpensive foreign dictionaries which are handy for interpreting easy inscriptions. Maybe you know of someone who speaks or writes the language you are seeking. Ask the person if they would help you. Most of the time the person is happy to help you translate the inscription even if he has to do some researching himself. If the inscription you seek is on a popular coin, it might have been translated already. Check your sources carefully.

Ninth: Use correct terminology. When you use the wrong word or phrase, your point will lose its meaning and appeal. Consult a coin dictionary if you are in doubt.

Tenth: Be direct and to the point. Avoid using long, complex sentences which are difficult to comprehend. Make certain the people who read your article will be able to understand what you meant when you wrote it.

Eleventh: Use photographs if possible. The actual taking of pictures can best be supplied from a photographer or your local camera shop. Photos can be obtained from your collection, other collections, books, magazines, fixed price lists or auction catalogues. Give an acknowledgement in the bibliography for every source used. Sometimes it may be necessary to acknowledge each photo on the back of the print. This usually only happens for museums or private collections. On the back of each photo, print lightly the title of the coin and the date. Young numismatists do not usually have much money for photographs. If you do have the money, photos will enhance your article. If you do not have the money for photos, your article, if well written, may be better than one with photos. Photos do not make a good article—it is the author who makes it good.

Twelfth: After you're done writing your article, put it away. Come back a few days later and read it fresh again. Now make any changes you feel need changing. You may see something wrong or improve on something you did not see before. Also, have someone else read your article and ask them for their opinion and any corrections they think should be made.

Thirteenth: Double check your spelling. No one likes to read an article with mistakes in it. Keep a dictionary handy while you're writing your article. And if you have any questions regarding proper wording, consult your grammar book.

Fourteenth: Include a bibliography. At the end of your article, any book, magazine, etc., that you used in your research should be listed separately.

Fifteenth: Type your article. If you do not type or if you do not have a typewriter, find someone to type the article for you. The proofreader and publisher will appreciate it very much. Remember, a typed article looks neater and is easier to read.

—o—

It is the author's hope that these guidelines will help and stimulate the young numismatist in writing the unwritten history of numismatics.

CENTURY OLD NOTES

"The Boston American Journal of Numismatics, No. 1, July, is at hand, just six weeks behind its publication day reminding us strongly of its predecessor and namesake, the New York American Journal of Numismatics, whose managers had an eccentric habit of dating the journal one month previous to its reception by subscribers. This is an unfortunate error in commencing a new publication; impressing its patrons, as it will, with the idea that the enterprise may prove to be a slow coach." Mason's Coin and Stamp Magazine, 1870.

TO SEE AND TO READ

THE HERITAGE OF COINS by Thomas W. Becker. Library 1, Volume 1. Illustrated. 64pp. Cloth cover. International Numismatic Collectors Society, Box 198, Newton Square, Pa. 19073. By membership only.

First of all, this revolutionary publication is an absolute must for the historian, student, artist, designer, archaeologist, sculptor, economist, tool maker, mineralogist, engineer, geographer, bibliophile, ethnologist, medalist, museologist, librarian, as well as the numismatist. It definitely entails many areas of study.

"Conceived as an introduction to the history and development of coins and the techniques for making them over the centuries, it is also a brief summary of the growth of the coin collecting community."

Thus Thomas Becker summarizes the purpose and scopes of his, The Heritage of Coins, first in a series to be published by the International Numismatic Collectors Society.

Incorporating new graphic concepts of presentation, this volume is strikingly and provocatively visual. The most unique example of this is a collection of eighteen photographic color slides of ancient and modern coins which are conveniently encased in plastic. This in turn extends its usage into that of a comprehensive visual-aid source; a most effective classroom tool. Becker also uses many photographs, etchings and multicolor pages to enhance his text.

While the text is superficial and immi- nently suitable for the layman or the young collector, it sacrifices nothing for the sake of simplicity. This volume does not purpose to be an in-depth analysis of any phase of numismatics. Future volumes, however, promise to cover limited subjects in detail, while The Heritage of Coins attempts to present an invitation to the casual reader to delve deeper.

If this first INCS edition is any indication of what we may expect in their forthcoming series,—I could easily begin holding my breath.—NILS M. WIKNER.

A LESSON IN ECONOMICS

HOW TO INVEST IN GOLD COINS by Donald J. Hoppe. 304pp. Illustrated. Cloth cover. 1970. Arlington House. New Rochelle, N.Y. 10801. $8.95.

The basic thesis of this book is approximately as follows: Gold will continue to be inseparably connected with man's economic life as a monetary medium in spite of all efforts on the part of the disciples of Marx and Keynes to outlaw it and relegate it to obsolescence. The monetary instability of the past decade, which the author considers likely to continue or even accelerate, has caused renewed interest in gold as an investment and as a store of value. Protracted inflationary trends will probably force a revaluation of the dollar in terms of gold. (Specifically, the author predicts on p. 137 that inflation will continue "until our economy reaches the point of complete disorganization and collapse.") In the United States, however, those who wish to invest in gold are frustrated by various restrictive laws which deprive the individual of traditional economic liberties and which leave open only one avenue of legally sanctioned investment in gold, namely in the form of gold coins of numismatic value, an investment which the author recommends with some reservations.

In order to emphasize the advantages of gold coins as a store of value, the author devotes much space and a number of interesting illustrations to the inflations of modern history, such as the assignats at the end of the 18th century in France and the later hyperinflations in Germany, Hungary, Russia, Brazil, Chile and many other lands.

Hoppe admits that he did not become interested in gold coins as an investment until about 1960. For this reason he has observed them during a period in which their market values have been rather strong. Those of us who have collected them for a longer time primarily for their historical and esthetic values (such as this reviewer, who has collected them since 1940) are not as likely to be quite so sanguine about their long-range possibilities as investments. Even during the year 1970, in which this book appeared, there has been a rather precipitous change in the general economy and a perhaps even more precipitous change in the art and numismatic markets. (Read, for example, the moanings about the present state of the art market in the art trade journal Auction, September issue, pp. 27-31.)

Hoppe pays a great deal of attention to relatively common United States gold coins, Mexican gold coins and Canadian gold coins, to each of which coinages he devotes a chapter. The subsequent chapter devoted to "European and Other Foreign Gold" is concerned almost exclusively with gold coins struck within the last hundred years. In this reviewer's experience, the gold coins that have advanced in market value most during the past decade and have maintained their market values best during the recent price slump are ancient, medieval, early modern (ca. 1550 to 1850) and U.S. before 1834. One series even seems to be making a gain under the present adverse circumstances, namely Indian gold coins of various periods. It is to these series in particular that Hoppe pays little or no attention.

The chapter devoted to counterfeits lists several methods of detecting them, but fails to mention the most important observation to be made of all, known to nearly any experienced gold collector, specific gravity. (Cf. The Numismatist, November, 1953, pp. 1152-5.)

Two factors of utmost importance in any discussion of gold coins as an investment are the problem of security and the high costs of marketing. Hoppe devotes relatively little space to these very important aspects (pp. 129-131, 260-4). Anyone who contemplates investing in gold coins must certainly give strong consideration to the fact that the underworld has been especially active in victimizing the coin collector in recent years and to the fact that costs of selling coins, especially the common ones, are likely to represent a high percentage of their value. Such costs can run into 15% or more for auction fees, dealers' commissions, advertising costs, postal fees and the like.

There are a number of disturbing numismatic mistakes in this book which an experienced gold collector would hardly be likely to make. The customary limits of length of a book review permit us to mention only several samples: Hoppe states (p. 145) that R. Friedberg's Gold Coins of the World "illustrates and gives an approximate valuation for every known gold coin minted from A.D. 600 to 1965." He even intensifies his error by italicizing the word "every." Experienced gold collectors know that, whatever the merits of Friedberg's catalogue might be, there are many gold coins of this period, indeed whole series of them, which Friedberg does not list, including the most important series of all during the later middle ages, the Byzantine series. When the author characterizes "Vatican" (i.e., Papal) issues of 1866-1870 as being, for all practical purposes, "gold commemorative medals rather than coins" (p. 221) he is evidently unaware of the fact that these pieces are often encountered in far from uncirculated condition, having been on the same standard as the gold of the Latin Monetary Union. On page 232 Hoppe lists proof as a grade rather than the manner of manufacture that the word "proof" implies.

Although the author's specifically numismatic horizon does not seem to extend much beyond that of a neophyte, he is at his best when discussing the hostility that various governments, such as those of the United States and the U.S.S.R., have toward gold and when analyzing the general monetary developments—past, present and future—which can have a bearing on the market values of gold coins. Especially noteworthy, too, are his arguments and observations on the social benefits of a stable currency based on the precious metals.

Whatever reservations one might have about the contents of this book in a strictly numismatic category, its ideas on general monetary problems, market phenomena and investing techniques would seem to be of considerable potential value in crystalizing the thinking of someone who intends to invest in gold coins.—DR.

CHARLES E. WEBER.

CARLSEN'S COINAGE OF ICELAND AND GREENLAND REPRINT READY

O. B. Carlsen's popular reprint, for sometime out of print, is again available to members. It illustrates and discusses the coinages of two Danish possessions, Iceland and Greenland. The reader will find eight pages devoted to both the government and private minted issues of these autonomous regions. Appearing in The Numismatist in the 1930s, Carlsen expended a great deal of time and research into the study of these curious specimens which include a number of merchant and trader tokens as well as the various legal strikes. Carlsen's examples range from the mid-1800s to a more recent coinage of 1926. The catalogue is illustrated and, in most cases, the descriptions are accompanied with bits of historical data surrounding the coinage.

"The Coinage of Iceland and Greenland" is an absolute must for the collector of colonial coinages and trader tokens. And aside from being an excellent reference source, it is sure to complement that history section of your numismatic library.

O. B. Carlsen's reprint from The Numismatist is available for 50¢, postpaid, from the ANA Librarian, American Numismatic Association, P. O. Box 2366, Colorado Springs, Co. 80901.

CHILDREN'S LITERATURE MEDAL SERIES

The second in a continuing series of medals honoring figures in the field of children's literature has been released by the University of Southern Mississippi. This year's medal honors Ernest H. Shepard, English illustrator-writer, and one of his most famous characters, Winnie-the-Pooh. The medal, awarded annually, differs from other such awards in that each issue is distinct. Six are struck in pure silver for specific presentations and 1,000 oxidized silver are sent to contributors to the University of Southern Mississippi's Children's Collection. Copies may be obtained for a $10 donation to the collection at Hattiesburg, Miss. 39401.

BRONZE MEDALS struck by the Franklin Mint were distributed on a first-come, first-serve basis by Broadcast Electronics of Silver Spring, Md., at its booth at the National Association of Broadcasters convention in Chicago. Using the same obverse design, center, Joe A. Cummins, New Orleans, La., offered radio stations bronze and aluminum medals with the reverse design on the right for distribution to listeners. Special arrangements could be made should the stations want their call letters added to the reverse die.

THE TOKEN COLLECTORS' PAGE

by Melvin Fuld, ANA 11932

"Radio. . . . That's the sound when the picture tube goes off. These classic words by Stan Frieberg probably have greater meaning for a more youthful generation who grew up in the face of television. But, to millions of older Americans, radio was a fireside chat with Franklin D. Roosevelt, a battlefield report from Walter Winchell and a laugh with Fred Allen. Radio gave us the uncanny ability to liberate our imaginations and see with our ears.

This year, over 5500 radio stations throughout the nation are celebrating broadcasting's Golden Anniversary—"50 years of service and entertainment to the nation thru the public airways." Although successful transmissions were achieved as early as 1906, standard public broadcasting did not begin full operation until November 2, 1920. Pittsburgh's station, KDKA, aired the first program—the Harding-Cox Presidential election.

Radios eventually boomed from the tiny, scratchy-sounding Westinghouse crystal sets into the monumental livingroom Magnavox. Listening became a quasi-social family event with everyone gathered around and tuned into their favorite people and episodes. Dear to many ears and hearts were Amos and Andy, Fibber MaGee and Molly, Jack Benny, Mrs. Goldberg and The Shadow. They were seldom missed. Hospitals, too, offered their convalescents a full day of programming for the inexpensive price of a small radio token. Radio, was, without a doubt, "IT."

With the advent of television, came the popular notion that radio would invariably succumb to this new dimension of broadcasting. Today, there are over 240 million radios in our homes plus another 80 million in our automobiles. Dying??? Please stay tuned for some interesting examples of the early radio tokens.

While this is the 50th anniversary of radio, the writer has seen very few radio tokens. This is especially true of the 1920s. In current times we see tokens issued by repair shops for both radio and television.

This token is identical in size and type to the St. Cloud Hospital piece. It is strange that so few of these have come to light since, no doubt, Dahlberg issued them for every hospital that had a franchise for their radios.

Numismatic Fortunes

SAGITTARIUS

November 22 - December 21

He is the enthusiast in your club, jovial and outgoing, he goes all out to make every event a success. In the field of collecting he prefers the unusual to the run of the mill coins. He will sometimes turn to the modern day proof sets and fantasy coins to the point of being conspicuous.

The Paris Mint does not confine its striking to coins and medals alone, but often strikes such diverse items as letter openers and costume jewelry. The zodiac bracelet seen here is just one example of the medallists' art put to utilitarian purpose. Address of the Paris Mint—11 quai de Conti, Paris VI, France.

numismatic vignettes

The original of this 1833 receipt measures 7¾ by 3¾ inches.

- A bit of paper with some printing, writing, and 10 little pictures on it! Oh, the handwritten dates on it are 1833 and 1834. And the little pictures—they are bank-note engravings, the equestrian vignette of Washington being signed by G. (Gideon) Fairman who died in March 1827. Near the upper r. corner is the name of the bank-note-printer firm, Draper Underwood Bald & Spencer, in business only about 2 years, 1832-34. The printing indicates that it is a receipt for $2.00 "on account of Subscription to Bicknell's Reporter, Counterfeit Detector and Prices Current." The signature is easy to read (when you know already what it is): Robert T. Bicknell. Bicknell was a lottery broker in Philadelphia who started the first reporter of phony bank notes published in that city and the third one in the country. It was issued for 27 years, 1830 to 1857.

This is a short example of why I like old bits of paper, many of which have a story back of them.

- Recently I've read two books about John Paul Jones, of whom I confess to having known very little—only that he was a Revolutionary War naval hero. One is on the John Paul Jones Commemoration at Annapolis, April 24, 1906, available from the U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402 at $3.00. It has board covers, over 200 pp., is well illustrated and very informative. The other, John Paul Jones and his Ancestry, Joseph G. Branch Pub. Co., Chicago, 1927, did not appeal to me.

In October, 1787, about 5 years before Jones died, the Congress ordered a gold medal struck "in commemoration of the valor and brilliant services" of "The Chevalier John Paul Jones." Copies were struck in bronze of the beautiful piece by French medallist Augustin Dupré, showing a profile bust of Jones on one side and, on the other, an intricate depiction of the shattered Bonhomme Richard battling the Serapis in the famed engagement of Sept. 23, 1779. The American Numismatic Society issued a rectangular plaque in 1905 in observance of the return of the body of Jones for burial in Annapolis. One of Victor D. Brenner's fine works, it was struck at the Paris Mint in gold (1 only), in silver (100), and in bronze (100).

Thus was a man finally honored by the country he served in the cause of freedom, but only after his body had lain for 113 years unidentified and without even the cemetery, in another country, being known as his resting place.—GLENN S.

Letters from Members

ORIGIN OF THE 1804 DOLLAR—II

In the August, 1970, issue of The Numismatist there appeared another article bearing on the Class I 1804 Dollar. Since the controversy appears likely to continue, it seems appropriate that this writer present some definitive statements with respect to the coin itself and the August article.

We may state with certainty the following observations:

- 1) The Class I 1804 Dollars were first struck in December, 1834, under the sole authority of Mint Director Samuel Moore.
- 2) These dollars were clearly illegal under the Mint Law of 1792 and no amount of verbal gymnastics can avoid this point.
- 3) Neither the President nor the secretary of state ordered any violation of the coinage laws. To intimate that 19th century American Presidents were little better than common criminals is simply absurd.

It is also proper at this time to make certain remarks concerning the August work (and by implication the article by the same author in The Numismatist, November, 1969, as features peculiar to it cannot pass unnoticed:

- 1) These articles are little more than an attempt to popularize a coin shortly to be sold by a firm to which the writer has a very close connection. There is hardly anything immoral in this action, but the perpetrator should at least "own up."
- 2) The second motive appears to be nothing less than a deliberate personal attack on another numismatist. Any person who takes the time to study the articles in question may see the truth of the matter for himself. One naturally wonders about the desirability of this type of numismatic writing.

- 3) In general there is no point in answering any of the allegations in the August issue since it contains not one shred of evidence to back up the contentions. There is, however, an extremely objectionable type of research carried on here. In an attempt to lend credence to his theories, the author resorts to drawing imaginary conclusions from the very statements of those opposed to his viewpoints. A particular example of this practice may be found starting with the last paragraph on page 1107 of the August issue.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The publication of the series of articles dealing with the Class I 1804 Dollar was done with but one purpose in mind—to bring out as many facts as possible concerning this controversial piece. With each article, with each rebuttal, has come facts and viewpoints ne'er before published. This was the sole intention of the series—to arouse interest, to find new information. At no time was it the intention of the editor to help promote the sale of any coin, nor was it his intention to sully the reputation nor integrity of any author researching the subject. Unless some new unpublished revelations of great consequence are uncovered, we intend now to close the editorial pages to the Class I 1804 Dollar for some time to come. —ECR.

An Unidentified Counterstamp

David G. Briggs, ANA 35098

The accompanying illustration of a counterstamped coin of Muscat and Oman is published for the information of collectors interested in counterstamps and in the hope that the markings can be identified.

The coin (Yeoman 3) is the old style copper $\frac{1}{4}$ anna of Sultan Fessul bin Turkee dated 1315 AH (1898 AD). On the obverse, the letters P Q U are incised, and on the reverse, 12 M is stamped over a portion of the date and just above the original denomination $\frac{1}{4}$ ANNA. The coin was found among a group of old coppers in New Delhi, India.

This counterstamp is not given in "A Trial List of the Countermarked Modern Coins of the World" by F. G. Duffield (reprinted from The Numismatist, 1962) and all efforts to identify the source and interpret the meaning have been unsuccessful.

The use of Latin letters and numerals would seem to imply that the markings are of European origin, probably for use in southwestern Asia or the east coast of Africa. Also, the reverse counterstamp appears to be a change of denomination to a currency value in use by Europeans in that area.

The letter "P" on the obverse recalls the P M (Provincia Mozambique) which the Portuguese stamped on Maria Theresa talers, as well as Mexican and Indian coins for use in Mozambique in the late 19th century. The Portuguese at one time issued stamps in Mozambique inscribed with the name of the town Quelimane, and if they accorded this town provincial status after 1898, this might account for the P Q. The U, however, remains a mysterious adjunct, even if this line of reasoning were correct.

That it is not appears to be borne out by the "M" denomination. The Portuguese did use the matica in Mozambique, but only for gold coins of $1\frac{1}{4}$ and $2\frac{1}{2}$ maticaes denomination (Craig 65 and 66) and at an earlier period (1835), so it seems unlikely as a denomination for a copper coin 63 or more years later.

The Portuguese also used the macuta in Angola, in western Africa, and issued 12 macuta coins there at least as late as 1796 (Craig 32), but this was then a large silver coin. By 1860, the 1 macuta (Craig 77) was a large copper coin of 39 mm. diameter (compared to 26mm. for this ¼ anna), and the 12 macuta denomination was no longer in use. In any case, it seems unlikely that a coin of Muscat and Oman would have made its way to Angola in west Africa to be counterstamped, and thence back to India.

The apparent conclusion that this counterstamp was not made by a government leaves open the possibility that it was the work of a commercial firm intended to change the coin into a token for the use of its employees or customers.

If any reader of The Numismatist can solve the mystery of this counterstamp, the information would be welcome.

LATE WORLD COIN NEWS

Pidyon HaBen certificate bears the signature of the chief rabbis and of the Bank of Israel, officially attesting the ritual fitness of the coins for the ceremony.

ISRAEL

Pidyon HaBen To Be A Series

First born sons in 1971 may be redeemed by coins minted that same year, a keepsake of the ceremony to be treasured. In addition to its ceremonial use, the Pidyon HaBen coin is intended to become a collector's item issued annually. To generate greater interest and value as such, the Bank of Israel will introduce, in each issue, a slight change in design on the side that the date and value appears. The sequence will thus become a series.

The coins have a legal tender value of 10 Israeli pounds, measure 37mm in diameter and are struck in coin silver, with a certain number in proof quality. The reverse of all the issues will remain the same, a schematic rendering of the accepted motif of the Tables of Law. Underneath in three lines, in stylized Hebrew lettering, the quotation from Exodus 34.20, "All the first born of thy sons thou shalt redeem."

The proofs will be struck at the United States Assay Office in San Francisco on planchets made at the Denver Mint. The 1970 dated Pidyon HaBen coins were withdrawn from circulation on September 30, 1970. Further details on availability can be obtained by writing the Coins and Medals Dept., Government of Israel, 850 Third Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022.

Another Series

Slade, Hampton & Son, Ltd., London medallists, have announced the release of set no. 2 of their Heritage of Great Britain series, commemorating great men and events of British history. This set depicts empire builders and explorers: Capt. James Cook, Clive of India, Cecil Rhodes, Dr. Livingstone, and Scott of Antarctica. The medals are struck for Slade, Hampton by the Paris Mint and limited to 1,000 sets of each subject in silver, a fewer number struck in other metals.

The complete heritage series is being released at six month intervals over the period of the next three years. Ten percent

Notes & Queries

First Claim Paid Under New ANA Insurance Plan

The first claim under the new ANA Collection Insurance Plan was registered by Thomas E. Radloff of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Radloff's charter member policy became effective April 15, 1970. On April 17—two days after his policy became effective—he and his wife were attending a birthday party for his granddaughter. They left their house at approximately 7:30 p.m. and returned two hours later. In the meantime, someone entered their house and cleaned out their entire coin collection. Radloff stated, "We feel this robbery was not committed by amateurs, as they were selective in what they took—passed up my valuable antique watch and jewelry and left behind common or late dated coins which have little numismatic value."

A claim settlement of almost $2,000 was promptly and courteously made by the insurance carrier of the ANA Collection Insurance Plan. Radloff, needless to say, was pleased with his decision to enroll in the ANA Plan.

Enrollment in the program is still available. For details write the ANA office in Colorado Springs or the office of our Administrator, Albert H. Wohlers & Co., 720 Garden Street, Park Ridge, Illinois 60068.

Fakes Flooding Market Extreme Caution Urged

A flood of rare coins, believed to be spurious, has been swelling the mail, according to Abe Kosoff, trustee for the American Numismatic Authentication Trust. Kosoff refuses to have the coins sent to him for authentication because when owners are told the coins are fakes they then frequently insist that the returned items were not the same ones they submitted.

"Most of the time, they are acting in good faith. They really believe that the coins are not the identical ones they owned," Kosoff stated. "In order to avoid any controversy, I simply refuse to look at the coins unless the owner shows them to me in person. Of course, when some official office under the jurisdiction of the American Numismatic Association is created the coins could be sent there. That's what the Authentication Trust is trying to accomplish."

Within a ten day period, three letters were received offering a Baldwin & Company $10.00 gold piece dated 1850. "The coin is much too rare for that," Kosoff asserted. At least ten offerings of the New Hampshire Cent of 1776 have been received by Kosoff in the past few months. Parsons & Co. $20.00 ingots, of which the only known genuine example is in the Lilly Collection now housed at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D. C., is another recent offering, five times over, all fakes.

"I received close to 100 specimens of the 1916-D dime for authentication during 1969. Fortunately at least 90% were genuine, in my opinion, but there were a few instances which defied my limited facilities and a qualified opinion was the best I could give. I so wished we were able to give more conclusive replies. Of course, the fakes started a chain of claims usually ending satisfactorily but occasionally the seller denied that the coin was the same one he sold. There is nothing the buyer can do about it. Of course, if the authenticity had been established AT THE TIME OF PURCHASE, no problem would have existed. The Professional Numismatists Guild's Registration Program will help, too, by establishing the item as the identical one in question. All of these programs need everyone's support," Kosoff added.

"I have received various types of letters" Kosoff went on. "A 12-year old junior collector sent in a $1.00 bill with a note saying, 'I know how important it is to be sure I get a real coin. I cannot afford too much but I know this program will help everyone including me.' A young man sends in $5.00 and says, 'I used to belong to ANA but had to leave it. Now I want to rejoin but this money is all I can afford right now and I think ANAT is very important. Next year I will again join ANA.' 'Thank you for your perseverance. I'm sorry I didn't send this ($50.00) sooner. I intended to but just kept putting it off—like everyone else seems to be doing.' 'You are performing a real service for every collector.' 'Keep up your good work. Collectors are bound to wake up to the need for ANAT.'

People who should know are throwing their support to ANAT. Just received is a sizeable check from numismatics friend, Eva Adams, former director of the U. S. Mint. "I think it would be an invaluable service, and would certainly prove the merit of the ANA as such," Miss Adams writes. And the president of the American Numismatic Association, Herbert Bergen, a devoted numismatist of many years experience, aware of the danger which fake coins create, pledged $5,000.00 to the trust.

"On several occasions, lately, I have felt like throwing in the towel" Kosoff continued, "but the encouraging letters from John Doe in Hicksville and Mr. Moneybags in the big metropolitan areas have made me feel ashamed to have even thought of quitting. Surprising to me is the shyness (with my tongue in cheek) of some of the big dealers who haven't given a dime. It would seem to me that they are the ones who stand to gain most by the establishment of an authentication service."

"Donors should be acknowledged," Kosoff concluded, "and Virgil Hancock, a co-trustee, is preparing a list for publication soon. Your name should be on it—and I've just received notice from Europe of a new fake 10 gulden piece of the Netherlands, but this can go on forever unless you and I do something about it."

—A. KOSOFF.

Current Strikes

Surely Oak and Threefold Brass

To the topical collector, the call of the sea, the sturdy clipper ships of yesteryear, make an inviting quest. Current Strikes lists here a few of the new issues that portray this theme:

The Miramichi Coin Club Shipbuilding Medallion was struck to commemorate the era of wooden shipbuilding on the Miramichi River. The obverse shows a 3/4 view of a barque in full sail. The opposite side shows the club crest, a leaping Atlantic Salmon. Struck in various metals by the Lombardo Mint, copies are available in bronze, $3.00; silver, $10.00. Miramichi Coin Club, Box 107, Newcastle, N.B., Canada.

Ferguson Award Goes to Bowman and Sheldon Carroll

The gold medals of the J. Douglas Ferguson Award were presented for the first time at the 1970 annual convention of the Canadian Numismatic Association held in Halifax, Nova Scotia. In accordance with Mr. Ferguson's wishes the award for 1969 was given to Fred Bowman and that for 1970 to Sheldon Carroll.

The medals were presented at the annual banquet by John Jay Pittman, president of the Canadian Numismatic Association. The award was instituted in 1969 by Mr. Ferguson as the highest award of the CNA.

At that time he established a trust fund, the proceeds of which will provide for the award of a 24-Kt. gold medal annually to a recipient selected by the permanent board of award. Under the terms of the rules and regulations of the award, the award is given to the living numismatist who, in the opinion of the board, has contributed most to the advancement of the science of numismatics in Canada, either through research, writing, publishing or in any other manner and who has not previously received the award.

Nominations for the award may be made by any member of the Canadian Numismatic Association. The gold medal is accompanied by a framed citation and was designed by A. Marchetti of Montreal and struck by the Lombardo Mint, Sherbrooke, Québec.

DO YOU HAVE CHOICE RARE COINS FOR SALE?

WE WANT TO BUY!

To build our stock and to fill our customers' want lists, we URGENTLY want to buy choice U.S. coins. Our large volume of sales makes it possible for us to operate on a low overhead resulting in a higher offer for your coins.

Over the years, it has been our pleasure to have handled many of the finest collections to be sold in America and Europe - including nearly every rarity in the Guidebook. But, you don't have to have one of the finest collections in existence or have great rarities to sell to us. On the contrary, we're receptive to any individual coins worth $10.00 each or more.

Below we give a want list of the items we are seeking. If you have coins ON THIS LIST, you may ship them to us by insured or registered mail. Q. David Bowers, of our staff, will personally make you an offer for them. If our offer is accepted, your payment in full will be sent immediately. If you say "no", then the coins will be returned at our expense. It may interest you to know that over 90% of the offers we make are accepted. We are SERIOUS BUYERS OF QUALITY MATERIAL.

Thinking of selling? Whether you have $50 worth of coins or $500,000 worth, think of Hathaway and Bowers Galleries, Inc. You'll like the way we do business. Check over the list of items we need, then ship us a package of coins for our top cash offer. We both lose if you go elsewhere. Over the years, we have purchased millions of dollars worth of coins from collectors such as yourself.

Wanted For Immediate Cash — The Following Coins:

- U.S. COLONIAL COINS: Anything and everything in the colonial field — from inexpensive state coins through Washington pieces to great rarities. If it catalogues $10 or more in the Guidebook and most colonials do, we are interested in buying it! Genuine coins only are wanted - not modern copies.
- U.S. HALF CENTS: Any half cents worth $10 each or more — including any date in EF or better condition as well as the early dates (1793, 1794, 1795, 1796, 1797, 1802) in ANY condition. We're always interested in augmenting our stock of the great Proof rarities of 1831, 1836, 1840 to 1848, and 1849, also.
- U.S. LARGE CENTS: Any large cents worth $10 each or more; singles as well as partial or complete runs of dates. All dates 1793 to 1799 inclusive are wanted in any condition as are the rare later dates such as 1804, 1809, 1823 and 1857. We'll pay full Guidebook or more for any Gem Uncirculated (please: no "processed" or artificially colored coins — sell them back to the place you bought them from instead!) large cents.
- U.S. INDIAN CENTS; LINCOLN CENTS: All Flying Eagle Cents wanted in Fine to Proof condition; 1856 Flying Eagle wanted in all grades Good to Proof. Any Indian Cent, Good to Proof, wanted with an individual value of $10 or more. Especially want to buy Uncirculated (truly, not artificially "processed") and Proof cents of ALL dates to fill our diminishing stock. "S" mints in all grades.
- TWO CENT PIECES; THREE CENT PIECES: Any single coins Good or better worth $10 each or more wanted. Also want partial or complete sets EF to Proof.
- NICKELS: Any nickels 1866 to 1934 worth $10 each or more WANTED. Especially want EF to Proof partial or complete sets of Shield, Liberty, and Buffalo series.
- HALF DIMES: All Half Dimes 1794-1805 wanted in ANY grade Good to Uncirculated. Will pay full Guidebook for any GEM Uncirculated coin in this range. Half dimes 1829 to 1873 wanted in VF to Proof condition - all dates and mints.
- DIMES: All dimes 1796-1837 wanted in Good to Uncirculated. Liberty seated issues worth $10 per coin or more wanted. And, all Unc. and Proof Liberty seated issues. Barber dimes: All EF to Proof coins; others with individual values of $10 or more.
- TWENTY CENT PIECES: All dates and mints 1875 to 1878 inclusive in all grades Good to Proof. Can use two pieces of 1876-CC as well (can one of our readers supply?).
- QUARTERS: All dates 1796 to 1838 wanted in Good to Uncirculated condition. Liberty seated issues valued at $10 or more, or any date or mint in EF to Proof condition. Barber quarters: Any coin worth $10 or more; any EF to Proof grade coin. Liberty standing quarters: All issues worth $10 each or more, any issues in EF to Uncirculated condition. Washington quarters: 1932 to 1939 Uncirculated only.

Do you have any of the above coins? If so, we'll both benefit if you sell to Hathaway and Bowers Galleries, Inc. Selling to us is as easy as A-B-C, and thousands of collectors and dealers have done it. Here's all you do: Package your coins carefully and send them to us by insured or registered mail. Enclose the handy coupon below (or use a separate sheet if you prefer). Q. David Bowers will examine your coins carefully and will advise you of our top cash offer. Upon receipt of our offer, you can advise us of your decision. If it is "I accept your offer" (this is the answer we usually get!), we'll send our payment in full without delay. If it is "no", your coins will be returned to you at our expense. Join the thousands who have sold to us. You'll be happy you did.

For references you may apply to any leading dealer. We are members of: American Numismatic Association (Mr. Bowers is Life Member No. 336); Professional Numismatists Guild; American Numismatic Society; Royal Numismatic Society; (London); other leading numismatic organizations.

Thinking of selling? Think first of Hathaway and Bowers Galleries, Inc.! We'll look forward to hearing from you by mail.

Sincerely,

Q. David Bowers

THINKING OF SELLING

Sell Your Coins To A Coin Retailer

We have spent a number of years developing a fine retail outlet for coins. Namely, our over counter sales service. The great central Texas market, our Coin World Ads are accepted and heavily responded to by their readers, plus our direct mailer list has some of the most active collectors in the U. S. Therefore you can understand why we need material in all price ranges.

Here's All You Do

1. Package your coins securely and mail them to us. They will be inspected upon receipt and our check goes out to you same day. Your coins held intact in our vaults until your acceptance of our offer received.
2. If your collection is too much to mail, contact us by letter or phone and we will work out suitable arrangements.

We invite you to contact any numismatic publication to check our professional references.
We will gladly furnish you the name of our bank so you can check our financial condition.

CASH ADVANCE

THAT'S RIGHT ! ! ! We will advance a percentage of the fair retail value of your collection immediately upon receipt. Please send inventory first — do not send coins until you hear from us. We will then sell your collection at one of our forthcoming auction sales and you will receive your final settlement within 30 days after the sale. Our commission rates are always reasonable.

During the time that your coins are in our possession they are stored in our protected and insured vaults. When you receive your advance check, if for any reason you are not satisfied with the amount of the check, just return it and your coins will be returned postpaid.

In many cases our advance will be almost equal to others offer of outright purchase.

If you are not currently on our mailing list, just drop us a postcard with your full name and address and we will place your name on our catalogue mailing list.

REMEMBER — It is not too late to have your collection included in our next outstanding auction sale.

OUR SALES ARE USUALLY HELD IN THE PARKER HOUSE

We are always in need of desirable numismatic material and will be happy to travel anywhere in the world to acquire it — either for auction or for outright purchase provided the value of the material warrants it.

NO COLLECTION IS TOO LARGE — We will furnish bank references upon request.

Retard Tarnish From These 3 Major Sources

Handling, even with greatest care, leaves silver-blackening acids on coin and medal surfaces.

Atmospheric impurities can quickly darken seemingly well-protected pieces.

Storage containers that seem "safe" — often contain tarnish-producing elements.

Double View Drawers and Cabinets combine the preservation techniques employed universally in Museums with the traditional means of storing valuable numismatic material . . . adding the completely new ingredient of NO-TOUCH TOTAL VISUAL ENJOYMENT of Obverse and Reverse designs.

WE WANT TO BUY

We are desperately in the market to buy all better U.S. copper, silver and gold coins, whether it's one coin, a set or a collection. We are also interested in all scarce U.S. currency, scarce and rare U.S. stamps or collections, as well as all Mexican and Latin American gold, crowns and rare minor issues. Send detailed inventory and price desired, or send inventory for our offer. If your collections warrants, we will travel.

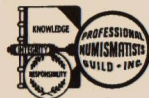

WHY SELL TO US?

1. Coins are our only business.
2. Our business is all retail so we can pay more. We feel this is important as many coins and collections are sold to coin wholesalers, who in turn sell them to coin retailers such as us.
3. We are one of the nation's leading advertisers (over 12 years) and print a monthly mailing list that reaches over 3,000 active buyers.
4. We know the market and we know coins. Many dealers don't keep active in today's market and if they don't know what something is worth they either figure the item real cheap or don't figure it at all.
5. We pay with cash, not promises.
6. We are financially sound. When dealing with us you know the money is there, as any collector or dealer in the country will attest to. We have never had to turn down a collection due to the amount of money involved.

THE COINAGE OF MEDIEVAL AUSTRIA

by Alfred Szego

"Wiener Munzwesen im Mittelalter" and "Ostreicher Munzwesen ob und unter der Enns" were the two last comprehensive references on the coins of Austria in the Middle Ages. These classics by Dr. Arnold Ritter Luschin von Eben-greuth published between 1913-18 have long been out of print and only a few copies exist today. These original essays are too lengthy for economical reprint.

To resolve these difficulties we have prepared an outline digest of both books that furnishes Luschin's illustrations (line drawings), retains his numbering sequence and also provides more modern attributions. Added are charts, tables, notes and a separate section on contemporary coins that may be mistaken for Vienna pfennigs.
All coins are tentatively priced with approximate market evaluations. This book contains 16 printed pages + 42 double pages (which equal 84 pages) + 1 map + 2 plates. Illustrated in the text, over 295 coins are pictured. Soft covers, centered stapled. The first edition will be limited to a few hundred copies, each of which will be numbered. Autographed on request.

This is a work that provides information not available elsewhere and will prove a very necessary addition to your library.
